EGYPT PLANS TO PROTEST ON DEMANDS OF BRITAIN

Constitution Ignored By London, Claims Manifesto

FRENCH OPINION

League Arbitration Is Urged By Press

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 25.—The concensus of comments in the press emphasise the impossibility of French intervention in Egypt, though submission of the points at issue to the League of Nations is largely advocated.

L'Ere Nouvelle says that even Signor Mussolini recognised in the case of Corfu the competency of the Conference of Ambassadors.

L'Oeuvre says that if the principles of the League are trodden under foot the league will crash down amidst ribald laughter and Britain will have to shoulder the responsibility for its grotesque failure.

L'Avenire declares that Britain is seizing, on the route to India, pledges similar to those to which she objected in the case of the Rhine and the Ruhr.

La Journee Industrielle says that in speaking to Egypt Britain was telling the whole Islam world that she intends to impose recognition of her lawer.

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, Nov. 25.—The Anglo-Egyptian crisis is much commented upon here. The Messagero typifies the comment comparing the situation with the Italo-Greek crisis and declaring that the Foreign Office, a year after the Corfu incident, aknowledges that when national honor is involved satisfaction can only be obtained from national strength.

(Reuter's Service)

Cairo, Nov. 25.—The Chamber of Deputies has formulated a protest to the Parliaments of the world and the League of Nations against the British action.

The protest re-affirms, inter alia, the complete independence of Egypt and the Sudan, which countries must be regarded as integral and not permitting of separation. It declares that in spite of Egypt's apologies and regret of the de-

FRENCH CHAMBER VOTES FAITH IN HERRIOT'S RULE

No Justification Found For Insinuations Against Cabinet Members

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 25.—The Chamber of Deputies passed a vote of confidence in the Government today by 318 votes to 196.

At the conclusion of the debate, in the course of which an opposition deputy insinuated that members of the cabinet had received funds from economic interests, M. Herriot laid stress upon his intention to defend the Republicans against the Communists and reactionaries and to mete ont republican law to all.

The resolution passed placed on record that there was not the least justification for the grave insinuation against members of the cabinet.

FRENCH OFFER NEW PLANS FOR OPIUM CONTROL

American Suggestion Opposed By Paris Delegation At Geneva

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Nov. 25.—The joint meeting of both general committees of the Second Opium Conference has completed its task. A plenary sitting will be held tomorrow to consider the general procedure relating, firstly, to the proposals of the advisory committee on opium, secondly, the American suggestion and, thirdly, the proposals submitted by Governments invited to the Conference but not represented.

Outlining the French attitude, M. Bourgeois said that he rejected the advisory committee's proposal and the American suggestion for the establishment of a special board of control. He suggested, firstly, the reduction of international control to a minimum; secondly, national control, which he declared had given good results in Great Britain, Holland and France; thirdly, replacing import certificates by official advices of export; fourthly, deposit security and Government authorisation; fifthly, publishing centralised statistics and denunciation of any center of contraband trade.

M. Bourgeois added that France desired the strengthening of the Hague Convention and suggested that countries should furnish import and export figures at the end of each year.

Turkey Eating Not Only Thing To Be Done Today As Thanksgiving Fiesta

Clubs, Hotels, Cabarets, Theaters—All Have Special Programs Arranged For Proper Observance Of American Anniversary

The formal or informal eating of turkey is not the only feature scheduled for today, Thanksgiving Day, in Shanghai.

For the Shanghai citizen is to be given an opportunity to dance, or watch the movies or listen to a musical recital or to drink tea—or do several of those things during the day.

All hotels, cabarets and clubs have special programs arranged for tonight. Movies will have regular pictures.

The American community will observe the day at 11 o'clock this morning with the special Thanksgiving service in the Cathedral. Bishop H. A. Boaz is to deliver the address. A choir under the direction of Mr. Lewis Perry will sing. Judge Milton D. Purdy, Rev. C. M. Drury, pastor of the Community Church, Rev. C. L. Boynton and Rev. C. F. McRae will have a part in the services.

The American Company, S.V.C., has its Thanksgiving Day Church Parade this morning. The Company will fall in at the Cathedral Compound, at Hankow and Kiangse Roads, at 10:40 a.m., for the services at the Cathedral.

The stranger within the gate, sailors and civilians, will not want for entertainment either today. The Navy Y.M.C.A. has arranged a special musical entertainment during the movie at the Navy Y. at 8 o'clock tonight. Tomorrow night a social will be held. The arrival of the flagship Huron with 1,000 men from Chefoo and the presence of other American and foreign war vessels on the river will do much to add a Thanksgiving air to the day.

The hotels have made special arrangements and chefs have drawn up especially attractive menus for dinner this evening. The Majestic Hotel is celebrating the day with a dinner-dansant at 8.30 o'clock. The Hotel Plaza will have a special turkey dinner tonight with dancing following. The Astor House Hotel chef has arranged a few extra frills for diners there tonight.

Festive programs will be found at the cabarets. The Palais de Dance will have a masquerade ball. The Carlton Cafe offers dining, dancing and entertainment by foreign performers. The Palais Cafe will pass out balloons and noise makers to enliven proceedings.

The Shanghai Municipal Orchestra will give its second program of Chamber music and soloist concert at 9.15 o'clock tonight at the Town Hall with Mr. M. Paci, maestro.

A bridge tea is to be held at the St. Joseph's Catholic Association, 39 Avenue Edward Edward VII, at 5.30 o'clock this afternoon.

A special tea dance is to be held at the new Columbia Country Club. The French Club will have its regular tea dance, the series of which is proving exceedingly popular with the younger set of various nationals in Shanghai.

The American Consulate General will be closed all day in deference to the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims on American shores. The Belgian Consul General will be host at a reception at the consulate general at 11.30 o'clock this morning in honor of the patronal feast of H. M. King Albert.

CONSTABLE HAS CLOSE CALL IN PISTOL BATTLE

Gunman Escapes In Struggle After Firing Shot At Police Officer

Police Constable Bell, attached to the Wayside Station, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury yesterday morning when he was shot at by a Chinese whom he had halted on Muirhead Road. The man, after grappling with the foreign police officer, managed to escape, as did a companion who had been walking with him.

The attempted shooting of the foreign police officer came as the climax to an almost unexampled list of armed robberies and attempted robberies, in one of which a Chinese was shot through the chest and seriously wounded.

Constable Bell was patrolling Muirhead Road at about 8:55 o'clock yesterday morning when his suspicions were aroused by the appearance and actions of the two Chinese. He caught the one nearest to him by one arm, intending to interrogate him. As he did so, the man pulled a pistol from under his gown and fired one shot at the police officer, which fortunately went astray. Bell and the gunman then began a struggle for possession of the pistol, which ended when the Chinese succeeded in freeing himself from the police officer's grasp and escape. His companion had run away in the meantime.

CHINESE IS SHOT

Because he unwittingly intercepted two armed robbers while they were attempting to effect an entrance into the home of a neighbor early yesterday morning, Zau Kung-sung was shot through the chest by one of the bandits and is now in a serious condition. Zau resides in the country just off Hart Road. Returning home shortly after midnight, he came upon two men who were digging a hole in the wall of a house near his own. The men turned on Zau and demanded money. When he refused to give them any, one of the men shot him and then both fled. Examination of the neighbor's house showed that although a hole had been dug in the wall nothing had been stolen.

A gang of robbers who attempted to hold up a Chinese in an alleyway off Alabaster Road were not quite so fortunate. The intended victim was walking along carrying a bag containing $50. Three men attacked him and attempted to take the bag. He raised an alarm, however, and the robbers were frightened and fled. The victim pursued one of the robbers, and with the aid of pedestrians managed to capture him and hold him until the police arrived on the scene. The captured man was not armed, nor is it believed that his two companions were.

$690 TAKEN FROM SHROFF

Cash totalling $690 and a number of cheques were stolen from a shroff and a watchman employed by the real estate firm of Brandt & Rodgers, according to a report filed with police of the Hongkew station. The money represented collections of rentals which had been made by the shroff.

The shroff and the watchman were in the watchman's room at 1088 Broadway East when three Chinese entered the place. One carried a pistol. The shroff and watchman were taken by surprise and surrendered the money and cheques without a struggle. Although the robbery was committed at 12:45 p.m. Tuesday it was not until an hour later that the police were notified.

Four men, all of whom were

FENG AGAIN TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION, PEKING HEARS

"Christian General" Plans Journey Abroad

GRANTED LEAVE

Vice-Ministers Will Assume Charge Pro Tem

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 25.—It is learnt from an authoritative source that General Feng Yu-hsiang has issued a circular telegram announcing his retirement from the post of Commandant of the National Army and stating that all his troops will be handed over to the Government.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Nov. 25.—General Feng Yu-hsiang, who was reported to have resolved to resign on the ground that he wanted to make Marshal Wu Pei-fu abandon the plan of re-opening hostilities against him, today tendered his second resignation to Dictator Tuan Chi-jui, stating, as a reason for his resignation, that at this juncture when the Dictator's Office has been brought into existence consequent upon the termination of warfare, he wanted to accomplish his cherished desire to go abroad.

Dictator Tuan having allowed General Feng one month's leave, the Christian General today proceeded to the West Hill.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 25.—A Mandate issued this morning instructs the following Vice-Ministers to take charge of their respective Ministries pending the arrival of the Ministers:

Mr. Shen Juai-lin, Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Chang Hsu-chin, Vice-Minister of Finance.

Mr. Shu Chen-ping, Vice-Minister of the Navy.

Mr. Ma Shu-lun, Vice-Minister of Education.

Mr. Li Chih-chou, Vice-Minister of Agriculture and Commerce.

Mr. Kung Hsin-chan, the Minister of the Interior, assumed office yesterday, while General Wu Kuang-hsin, the Minister of War, and Mr. Chang Shih-chao, the Minister of Justice, assumed office this afternoon.

It is reported that Mr. Cheng Hung-nien will be appointed Vice-Minister of Communications.

It is reported that Marshal Tuan Chi-jui will appoint an advisory council under Mr. Lin Chang-min, former Minister of Justice.

A preparatory department for the forthcoming delegates' conference is being established under Mr. Chu Ying-kuang and also a similar department under Mr. Shu Shih-ying in connection with the subsequent National Conference.

General Feng Yu-hsiang's note of resignation explains exemplary motives for returning to Peking. He says that there is no need for his further military services during the forthcoming reconstruction period and, therefore, he intends to tour Europe and America in order to widen his knowledge and gain experience which may be of use to the country in the future.

Five Ministers Of Peking Cabinet Here; Mr. Tong Shao-yi Declines Position

Minister Of Finance Li Shih-hao Leaving Tomorrow; Minister Yang And Admiral Lin Going Shortly; Wang Chiu-ling Indisposed

Five of the nine Ministers who will form the new Peking Cabinet are at present in Shanghai. They are Minister of Foreign Affairs, Tong Shao-yi; Minister of Finance, Li Shih-hao; Minister of the Navy, Admiral Ling Chien-chang; Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, Yang Shu-kan and Minister of Education, Wang Chiu-ling.

Mr. Tong Shao-yi has definitely turned downed the foreign portfolio. When interviewed in his Range Road home yesterday, he said that the situation up north did not warrant his presence in Peking, although he wished it to be known definitely that he appreciated the courtesy extended to him by Marshal Tuan Chi-jui. He said he was writing the Chief Executive a personal letter, the contents of which he did not wish to disclose at present.

In conversation with his friend, Mr. Tong contended that the orders of Peking would still be ignored by the provinces and that the chances for civilian rule were still remote. Until civilian rule could be exercised in the capital with full liberty, Mr. Tong did not propose to participate in administrative affairs, he said.

When his friend suggested that it appeared that prospects for civilian rule were brighter than ever, Mr. Tong disagreed. "Maybe ten years from now, we would free ourselves from military rule," said he. "When the Republic was established, I asserted that it would take 20 years before China could adjust matters and enjoy civilian rule. Some people thought I was crazy. But I believe the march of events has borne out my statement admirably. The old generation must die out before we could abolish military rule absolutely."

Minister Li Shih-hao will sail for Tientsin tomorrow, according to information obtained yesterday from his home. He will be accompanied by his family.

Admiral Lin Chien-chang, who had just recently returned from Mukden, expects to leave for Peking next week. It will be remembered that he was the only naval man who was loyal to Marshal Lu Yung-hsiang, after the latter's fleet was purchased over by the Nanking Admiralty.

Mr. Yang Shu-kan will also leave here for Peking next week, probably with Admiral Lin, but he announced yesterday that he may not accept the position, while willing to assist Marshal Tuan in his reconstruction work. He had previously declined the office when offered to him by Marshal Tuan through Mr. Hsu Shih-yin, ex-governor of Anhui.

Mr. Wang Chiu-lin is indisposed and is still a patient at one of the foreign hospitals here. His friends, however, said that as soon as he recovers his health he would proceed to Peking to assume office.

OVERTURES ARE MADE TO PEKING BY HUPEH CHIEF

Release Of Tsao Kun; Honors For Wu And Withdrawal Of Troops Asked

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, Nov. 25.—General Hsiao Yao-nan, Tuchun of Hupeh, conjointly with General Chi Hsieh-yuan, Tuchun of Kiangsu, has submitted the following three proposals:

(1) The release of ex-President Tsao Kun.

(2) The appointment of Marshal Wu Pei-fu as Superintendent of Military Training.

(3) The withdrawal of the troops under the command of Marshal Chang Tso-lin and General Feng Yu-hsiang to their original posts.

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Nov. 22.— A lengthy pronouncement has been issued by the Hupeh Provincial Assembly stating that they have advocated peace and order in this province since the coup d'etat at Peking. They are strongly opposed to the establishment of a military government in Wuchang and are doing everying in their power to prevent the scheme from materialising. According to the proclamation the following resolutions were passed at the emergency meeting held on the 21st inst:

(1) That a petition be sent to Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan asking him to definitely express his opposition to the establishment of a military government.

(2) That the various provinces be asked to help to prevent the military government scheme from materialising.

(3) That Marshal Wu Pei-fu be asked to obey the will of the people.

FOREIGN ENVOYS EXCHANGE VIEWS ON NEW REGIME

Unofficial Approval To Be Given Dictatorship, Report

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Nov. 25.—The Diplomatic Body, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, held a meeting. While the substance of this meeting is being kept secret, it is learned on good authority that the Diplomatic Body has decided that the foreign ministers will each reply to Dr. C. T. Wang, unofficially expressing their approval of the assumption by Marshal Tuan Chi-jui of the post as temporary dictator of the Republic of China.

It is understood that at the meeting, no reference was made to the question of recognition by the Powers of the establishment of the Dictator's Office.

BANDITS ASK SCHOOL GIRL FOR RELEASE OF REV. ANDA

Norwegian Captive Is Taken To Unknown Destination

CHINESE KILLED

Chief Gentry Put To Death By Slicing Process

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, Nov. 26.—The Sichwan (Honan) correspondent of the Central China Post says that Mr. Anda, of the Norwegian Lutheran Mission, who was captured by bandits on November 18, has been taken to an unknown destination. The correspondent adds that more than 100 persons have been murdered by the bandits, whose chief now demands a Mission school-girl in exchange for Mr. Anda.

The correspondent also states that the English missionary at Kingtsekwan (? Mr. Parker of the China Inland Mission) has been ordered to pay a levy of $10,000 on pain of death and of the station being burnt.

(Independent News Service)

Laohokow, Hupeh, Nov. 15.—Robbers and bandit hordes across the border of Honan are again threateningly on the move. The brigand chief Chen Shih-mai, who was dismissed from active government service in another province, has arrived at his home near here enraged at his dismissal and intends to establish a reign of terror. His friends are flocking to his banner and the officials have no way of curbing him.

I visited the city of Tengchow last week and the people there told me the terrible story of the taking of Liangchwang the night before, during which the robbers sacked the town and killed about one hundred of the inhabitants. The chief gentry of this small town were killed by binding them beneath a grass cutter and slicing them into a thousand pieces. The country people are fearful of the future, wild rumors are being circulated about killings and lootings, and they are flocking into the walled cities as quickly as their legs can take them.

About forty li to the south of Tengchow, not far from the Hupeh border, I saw several Chinese held up and robbed of all their belongings. My company was fortunate enough to have come through unmolested. This is no time for pleasure trips here, and only the most important business warrants leaving one's home.

I received a letter from Tengchow yesterday which today me, "The people here are panic stricken. They all say that Chen Shih-mai is coming in order to take revenge on the city and the magistrate, that he has taken the magistrate's wife prisoner and kept her so for several months ..... I can see villages burning not more than 15 li from the city walls ..... In the evening some soldiers arrived from Nanyang, and the situation is more hopeful."

The work on the motor road connecting Hsuchow with Laohokow is being pushed forward in good shape, and will soon be ready for military traffic at least. The city of Laohokow itself, and this neighborhood, is peaceful and undisturbed by the bandit terrorism across the border.

Necessity For Vaccination Stressed By Health Dept.

Warning of the necessity for smallpox vaccination in view of the imminence of the smallpox season in Shanghai is contained in the monthly report of Athelstane Hill, Acting Commissioner of Public Health, which is published in today's issue of the Municipal Gazette.

"The smallpox season begins in November, and it should be noted that smallpox in the Orient is at present extremely virulent with a case mortality of about 80 percent," the reports says.

"The anti-vaccinationists of Shanghai seems rather to have mistaken their brief. No one who knows anything about the subject denies that vaccination affords almost absolute protection; but there are some who think that in England, where all smallpox is imported, and where any case occurring is at once notified and isolated, it would suffice to reserve vaccination for those known to have been exposed to infection. This is a perfectly rational sugression, though it is generally held that other preventive measures are not yet perfect enough to warrant abandoning the practice of compulsory universal vaccination. But it is totally inapplicable to Shanghai, where smallpox is endemic, and notification and isolation do not cover 5 percent of the population.

"Metaphysical objections to vaccination cannot here be discussed; but the undeniable fact should be stated, that those who refuse vaccination on such grounds have, of recent years, contributed to the foreign smallpox mortality a number out of all proportion to their numerical strength in the community. Any-

EVERY THREE YEARS

"Vaccination should be performed three-yearly, and should be at once repeated if not successful.

"6,611 free vaccinations were performed, as against 3,600 in October, 1923. About 45 percent of these were refugees."

Further preventive measures with regard to bacillary dysentery are also urged by the health department.

"With increased care of the water, milk and food supplies, the risk from these sources should ere long be very much diminished, and it would not be much of an exaggeration to say 'No flies, no dysentery' the report says. "But the extermination of flies is an ideal that cannot be realised, in spite of special attention to the subject such as has been given this summer. This risk must be eliminated by domestic precautions, and it is worth the little trouble involved.

VIRULENCE VARIES

"The mortality this year has been low, but this is no guarantee that it will be so next year and the next. The virulence of diseases varies from time to time for reasons as yet quite unknown. Influenza, which for twenty years was only a "feverish cold," suddenly became a world-devastating epidemic and the case-mortality of bacillary dysentery in some

BRITISH NOTES SIMPLY ABSURD, SOVIET'S VIEW

Authenticity Of Zinovieff Letter Is Unproved, Says Newspaper

(Reuter's Service)

Moscow, Nov. 26.—Commenting on the British notes, the official organ, the Izvestia, says that Mr. Austen Chamberlain does not prove the authenticity of the Zinovieff letter. His asserted connection between the Communist International and the Soviet Government is simply absurd, the paper declares.

"We must consider Mr. Chamberlain's note not only an attempt to exert pressure on the Soviet Government with a view to compelling it to grant concessions but as a great provocation which we regard unmoved. Our position is strong. We will not retreat."

The Pravda accuses the British Foreign Secretary of trying to shuffle the cards.

U. S. INSISTS ON FULFILMENT OF RADIO CONTRACT

Sino-American Pact Will Have To Stand, Peking Is Told

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Nov. 26.—The American Charge d'Affaires some time ago verbally notified Dr. C. T. Wang that the Sino-American radio contract having been legally concluded, even if the new government in Peking wanted to cancel the same, the American Government would never comply with such a request. The American Charge further requested Dr. Wang to convey this message to the Chinese authorities concerned and arouse their attention in this respect.

WELLINGTON KOO NOW IN SHANGHAI, CHINESE REPORT

Dr. Wellington Koo, minister of foreign affairs in the last Chihli cabinet, is now in Shanghai, according to a report published in the local vernacular press. The newspapers assert that following General Feng Yu-hsiang's coup d'etat in Peking, Dr. Koo fled to Tientsin and managed to escape secretly on a ship for Shanghai. His wife had preceded him here, the reports say.

Coolie Too Free With Municipal Belongings

There are advantages working for the city government, after all.

Tsang Z-ching, 28 years old, coolie employed by the Municipal Health Department, indicated to Mixed Court yesterday that his job as mail coolie could have been worse.

He was given money with which to buy stamps. Instead he took old stamps from letters, washed them clean with pure alcohol from the municipal laboratory, pasted them on the new letters—and profited seven cents thereby.

But he grew careless and some of the marks were left on the stamps. Postal authorities checked up. As a result Tsang is now serving a two months' sentence.

YEN RECOVERY MUST WAIT ON BETTER TRADE

Japan's Finance Minister, In Speech To Bankers, States Views

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, Nov. 26.—Mr. Hamaguchi, the Minister of Finance, speaking at the Bankers' Convention here today, said that the recovery of the Yen must wait for a more favorable turn in foreign trade but that would take time. Meanwhile the Government intended to take expedient and effective measures to stabilise the exchange.

He said that the measures contemplated included the use of specie held both at home and abroad. The Finance Minister also stated that the Government would not interefere with the introduction of foreign capital by private concerns, provided they were able to pay the interest and principal and if such capital were deemed necessary for the development of industry and commerce.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Nov. 26.—Speaking at the Bankers' Club today, Mr. Junnosuke Inouye, former Minister of Finance, declared that the Government's proposal as recently indicated by the Minister of Finance for lifting the gold embargo would be a serious blunder at the present juncture while the exchange rates were so much against Japan. Mr. Inouye said that the Government lost a logical opportunity in 1919 when Japan's specie holdings were very large.

Egypt Plans To Protest Against British Demands

plorable crime Britain has seized the occasion to carry out an imperialistic policy counting on force to avenge herself on a pacific country. The British action ignores the Constitution and attacks the agricultural life of the country. The British demands are not related to the crime and are unprecedented in history. In conclusion the protest says that the League of Nations should intervene on behalf of a peaceful and helpless nation.

Paris, Nov. 26.—The press is still devoting columns to the events in Egypt and harping on the League of Nations, in which connection L'Ere Nouvelle notes that nearly the whole British press is opposed to intervention by the League and says that France will not forget the fact when Britain intervenes in a European question in which French claims are at stake.

Pertinax, writing in L'Echo de Paris, suggests that the time has come to re-temper the Anglo-French Alliance and to discuss the questions of the Cologne zone and demilitarisation of the Rhineland and the measures to be taken to guard against Spanish withdrawal from Morocco.

MINISTER, WORRIED, TRIES SUICIDE.

REV. and MRS. LESLIE ANDERSON.

A reunion in a Chicago hospital followed the attempt of Rev. Leslie Anderson, of St. Joseph, Mich., to attempt suicide after three days' absence from his home because of scandal mongers who had linked his name with women members of his church. Mrs. Anderson promptly joined him after he had been struck by an automobile and dangerously injured. She announced they "will start all over again."

"B" Co. British Visits Thomas Hanbury School

An interesting hour was spent by members of "B" Company, British, S.V.C., last evening, when the Company on the invitation of the Acting Headmaster. Mr. H. G. Huckstep. B. A., paid a visit to the Thomas Hanbury School for Boys.

Captain N. Hansen, the Manual Training Instructor, explained the methods of trestle building in connection with rapidly constructed bridges, and how woodwork enters into various phases of military operations. Some excellent articles of furniture, made by the pupils under his direction, were displayed in this department.

The engineering workshop was then visited, where the pupils of Mr. D. Pedersen were to be seen hard at work in metal turning, filing, and making various articles for use in connection with wireless. Model locomotives, machines, and engines in various stages of completion were on exhibit.

The keenness displayed by the students in these two departments was a pleasure to witness. They appeared to have solved the question of what to do during the long winter evenings.

Mr. H. Standring, B.A., then conducted the Volunteers to the chemical laboratory, and explained the important part played by chemistry in modern warfare. He mentioned the purifying of water by chemicals, and touched upon the various explosives, viz., gunpowder, cordite, and T.N.T. He demonstrated the violence of these substances by igniting a pinch of red phosphorus with a little potassium chlorate. He then went on to discuss the uses of poison gas and nearly asphyxiated his audience with whiffs of chlorine and sulphur-dioxide. He spoke at length on the construction of the field-telephone, wireless telegraphy, and the possibilities of the so-called "Death Ray" in stopping aeroplane engines and the killing of persons at long range by this means. He concluded by mentioning the uses of hydrogen and helium in airships and the use of liquid fire in trench warfare.

The Commanding Officer, Lieut. W. C. Divers, on behalf of the Company, thanked the specialists in charge of the various departments for their valuable and most interesting demonstrations, and expressed the hope that members of the Company would avail themselves of the excellent facilities for manual training afforded by the Municipal Council.

years has been as high as 30 percent.

"The necessary precautions are simple and inexpensive. Keep all cold food covered; sterilise, or cut off, exposed surfaces; and the problem is solved. Squares of muslin, weighted at the corners with beads, or stretched on light frames of split bamboo, cost very little and are very effective. If dysentery were eliminated, as could so easily be done by taking these simple precautions, Shanghai would not compare unfavorably with most Western cities in its health record."

The report for October shows no deaths due to smallpox, typhus fever or relapsing fever; four Chinese deaths due to influenza; nine foreign cases of typhoid fever and two of paratyphoid, two of the cases of typhoid being fatal; six cases of dysentery, one of which was fatal; twelve foreign cases of amoebic dysentery; 33 foreign cases of bacillary dysentery; two foreign cases of diphtheria; nine foreign cases of scarlet fever, two of them fatal and seven foreign cases of pulmonary tuberculosis.

Civil Governor To Name Canton Mayor

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Nov. 19.—The next mayor of Canton will be appointed by the Civil Governor of Kwangtung upon the nomination of special classes of citizens. The students, laborers and merchants each form a nomination group. The farmers also have asked to have the privilege of putting up a candidate but their request has been refused.

Mr. Wong Tong, formerly a well-known merchant in Hongkong, but for the last two years in the service of the Kuomintang headquarters, is being mentioned for the post of municipal treasurer of Canton. This is a very responsible post because the treasurer is in charge of the sale of public lands.

CHEN INTENT ON LEADING TROOPS BACK TO CANTON

Southern Leader To Disregard Developments In North And Central China

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Nov. 19.—General Chen Chiung-ming has publicly notified the citizens of Canton that his army will effect a "come back" to Canton at the earliest possible moment and that he will disregard political developments in North and Central China.

Owing to the "Reds" trying to oust the anti-Kuomintang Cantonese troops from Shekiung, which a detachment of General Chen Chiung-ming's army occupied a fortnight ago, a clash between the opposing forces may occur earlier than had been expected.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Nov. 19.—It is reported that Wuchow, a Kwangsi port up the West River, may become the temporary capital of that province for the next few months. General Liu Chen-huan, the Kwangsi mercenary commander now in Canton, but who has recently been appointed Civil Governor of Kwangsi by Dr. Sun Yat-sen, is stated to be returning to his native province armed with a commission from Dr. Sun to inaugurate himself as the governor with Wuchow as the capital. His return to Nanning, the regular capital of Kwangsi, is being opposed by other militarists now dominating the province, General Shen Hung-ying, General Wang Shao-hung and others. According to local reports, General Liu is expected to proclaim himself Governor of Kwangsi about November 25.

Japanese Sentenced For Carrying Arms

A Japanese named Tokuno, employed as a donkeyman on the Steamer Shanghai Maru, who was arrested on Yangtszepoo Road while in possession of two Mauser pistols, was sentenced to ten days' imprisonment by the Japanese Consular Court. The pistols were ordered confiscated. When arrested, the man told the police that the pistols had been given him by a Chinese aboard the Shanghai Maru who had paid him $20 to deliver them to another Chinese in the Settlement.

Wild Scenes Staged When Police Evict Glasgow Communist

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 25.—There were wild scenes at Cambuslang near Glasgow on the occasion of the eviction of a prominent Communist. The Sheriff's officers and police using crowbars forced an entrance to the house but were met by a fusilade of missiles and drenched with water. Two Communists have been arrested. The occupants of the house put up a bold fight and something resembling a pitched battle ensued. There was considerable demonstration against the police after the arrests but a big force of police had a quietening effect.

Military Leaders To Confer At Ichang

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Nov. 22.—According to the native press, General Lu King-shan, Wu Lien-sen, Yu Hoh-chung, Wang Tao-hing, Sung Tapei and other important military leaders of the Upper Yangtze will shortly hold a conference at Ichang to discuss the present situation. It is learned that these militarists stand for peace and order and support Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan and Tuan Chi-jui. Anybody going against this policy will be dealt with by their combined force estimated at two divisions and four mixed brigades.

GOING without life insurance is placing a great burden of risk upon your family and your enterprises. Carrying as large a line of insurance as you prudently can will often save to your estate much more than the amount of insurance itself. It will turn equities into unimpaired assets.

WAITING until you "can afford" more insurance entails hazards that the prudent, serious-minded person will avoid. We can be of real help to you in working out an insurance plan that will cover your needs. Without obligating you we shall be glad to discuss it with you upon request.

KWANGSI LEADER IS ATTACKED ON VISIT TO CANTON

General Huang Chao-hsiung Is Assaulted In Hotel Room By Ruffians

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Nov. 25.—General Huang Chao-hsiung of Kwangsi, who is now on a visit here to make arrangements as to the question of General Liu Chen-huan's assumption of the civil governorship of Kwangsi, was suddenly assaulted by more than twenty ruffians late last night while he was sleeping in his room at the Oriental Hotel. However, General Huang managed to escape from death and is now under protection in the general headquarters of the Kwangtung troops under the command of General Hsu Chung-chih.

It is reported in this connection that the ringleader of the offenders appears to be General Chen Tien-tai, Commander of the 3rd Division attached to the 7th Army, and that he attempted to assassinate General Huan, nursing bitter hatred against the latter because a few years ago his troops were disarmed in Kwangsi by General Huan's forces.

Following the accident, General Huang yesterday afternoon attended the Kwangsi Relief Conference held in the general headquarters of the Kwangtung troops. At the conference, it was agreed on the whole to recognised General Liu Chen-huan's assumption of the civil-governorship of Kwangsi but views were divided on the question of the return to Kwangsi of the Kwangsi troops, which are now staying in Canton. It is reported that General Li Tsung-jen and General Chao-hsiung have been recommended to the posts as Tupan and Hupan, respectively, of Kwangsi.

King's Daughters Society Tea-Dance Largely Attended

An enthusiastic gathering that filled the capacious ballroom of the Majestic Hotel made the afternoon tea dance of the King's Daughters Society for the benefit of the Convalescent Home a complete success yesterday.

Figures were not available last evening as to the exact number present but it was estimated that more than five hundred people attended.

A delicious tea was served and so generous was the response of members to the request to furnish cakes, pastry and other edibles, that not only was there sufficient to take care of the appetite of the overcrowd but enough remained to be sent to a few Russian schools and other organisations which the King's Daughters Society helps. Coffee and tea were provided by the hotel and the Society committee expressed its appreciation of this service and the general co-operation extended by the hotel management.

The hotel orchestra played from five to seven and dancing was in progress between those hours. After the tea dance many parties remained in the hotel for a before-dinner cocktail which they enjoyed in the various pleasant rooms provided for them—the Winter Garden, the Chinese Room and the other main lounging rooms.

An exhibit that attracted much attention and many customers during the afternoon was a collection of wooden toys, hand made and nicely painted in good colors, by a young Russian boy. These toys—mostly of animals—were cheaply priced and many adults took occasion to do their Christmas shopping early.

Pardon Is Granted Gen. Von Nathusius

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 25.—Owing to the amnesty and probable reaction of the conviction of General von Nathusius on Franco-German relations, the Government have pardoned him.

Note:—The German General von Nathusius was sentenced by a French court-martial on November 9 to one year's imprisonment on a post-war charge of stealing articles of clothing and furniture from a Chateau where he had been billetted in war-time.

15,000 JEWS IN EUROPEAN PORTS FACE STARVATION

Barred From America By Quota Law After Approval Of Passport

Fifteen thousand Jews of all ages are facing starvation in European ports to which they moved from their old homes in the belief that they would be admitted to the United States, but from which country they are temporarily barred by the limitations of the quota rulings, according to a report made in New York last month by the Emergency Committee on Jewish Refugees, 1 Madison Avenue. In England, Germany, Rumania, France and HoHand these families are suffering acute distress, with no hope for bettered conditions unless Americans respond to their need, says the report.

In many cases these persons are threatened with deportation to their country of origin, by which move they would be deprived of any chance of getting aboard an American-bound vessel at such time as the immigration law would permit their entry here. The funds that they had with them at the moment of their disappointment, when they first learned that their passports, bearing the visas of American Consuls, were worthless, have been spent and other funds are not available. The committee reports that in most cases these families had obtained money for the voyage only through selling all of their possessions.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORTS

Extracts from the reports of investigators show the following conditions:

"There are 3,500 refugees in Rumania whom the government of that country will not permit to remain within the borders of that country after the end of this year.

"Six hundred in Riga are also faced with the danger of deportation, the date of which had already been fixed. The committee succeeded in securing a temporary postponement of the dire decree. But it is only a postponement. The decree which will plunge these refugees into a new abyss of despair may be enforced any day.

"Here is the situation: The relatives of these emigrants live in America. These relatives sent to the prospective emigrants money and the necessary papers. The native governments issued passports and the American consuls visad these passports. Steamship tickets for the United States had been purchased and the people were in readiness to come to this country. If the consuls had not issued the visas the problem of these stranded emigrants might not have arisen. It is a Jewish problem from the point of view of relief, because these emigrants are Jewish."

5,000 DESTITUTE IN CUBA

Not less serious, according to the committee, is the situation of 5,000 Jews in Cuba, who were persuaded to go there by agents of steamship companies, who assured them that a short residence there would give them the right to enter the United States. Most of this contingent is made up of wives and children of men already in this country, and of them the committee says: "Very few, if any, could, under any circumstances, qualify for admission."

Investigators have reported that the cost of living in Cuba is so high that many of the 5,000 are starving in an environment that constantly threatens an epidemic of disease, because of the tropical heat and insanitary conditions. The families have been driven by high rents into the tenderloin district, where young children are sheltered as best the parents can, and girls are continually threatened by the prevailing immoral conditions, the report states.

The effort to raise $500,000 for relief work among these refugees has not brought in sufficient funds to meet the critical condition, the committee adds, and unless the money is pledged immediately it will come too late. Louis Marshall and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise are chairmen of the committee.

Basketball Play In Local League Starting Monday

The Foreign Basketball League, the formation of which with eleven teams was announced in THE CHINA PRESS a week ago, is starting play next Monday, December 1, when three games are scheduled, two at the Rowing Club and one at the Pavilion. The matches which will start off the League season are the Rowing Club's "Strokeside" quintet vs. the "Scott Co." (American Baseball Club), the Rowing Club's "Bowside" vs. the Machine Gunners, and the Recs vs. the Orioles. The first two games will be played on the Rowing Club's floor and the third at Pioneer Pavilion.

The schedule arranged provides for four playing nights weekly, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, ten games a week except during the holiday season. Each team is scheduled to play each of the others twice. In the table given below "R. C." is the abbreviation for the Rowing Club, and "Pav." for the Pavilion at Pioneer Field.

FALL RACE MEET AT TSINGTAO IN WINTER WEATHER

Sokoloff Wins Seventh And Eighth; German Entries Twice Successful

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tsingtao, Nov. 22.—The premature approach of Winter took a hand in the autumn race meeting of the Tsingtao International Recreation Club which opened yesterday, and a comparatively small number of enthusiasts shivered in the chilling wind as the ponies galloped round the course. Those who braved the elements, however, witnessed some excellent sport.

Mr. Sokoloff, the crack Shanghai rider, scored two victories in quick succession in the seventh and eighth races, riding his own pony "Gally Boy" home in front, and then piloting Mr. Bethsen's "The Rebel" to the wire ahead of the rest of the field.

An even more brilliant feature was Mr. Chang's three successive triumphs in the third, fourth and fifth races, two of which went to the Chinese-owned Union Stable.

Mr. Raydt's riding was another outstanding feature. He was up on two German entries, "Fritz" and "Pei Fu."

The German colony here is taking an increasing interest in the pony racing, and from now on can be reckoned upon to play a prominent part.

"Kokuriu," a Japanese entry and a rank outsider, sprinted to victory in the second contest and paid big dividends.

The results:

Amateurs Defeat Sailor Basketball Team By 25 To 17

At the Y. M. C. A. last night the Chinese Amateurs defeated the team from U.S.S. Penguin by a score of 25 to 17. It was a close and exciting contest, marked by a considerable amount of hard and rough play. It was divided into four quarters for greater convenience.

Both teams fought hard, but the first half of the game showed the keenest play, and the Amateurs at half-time had a lead of only one point, due to a foul scored by Hoh, the score standing 11 to 10. After this, however, the Amateurs rapidly increased their lead, scoring four field goals to one by the sailors during the next quarter, and added a little more to their lead before the final whistle.

Lee's excellent shooting was a feature, as it has been in most of the Amateurs' games, and he scored ten of their 25 points.

The Penguin quintet showed pretty good team-work, but their shooting was very poor at times.

The score was as follows:

Penguin		Amateurs
Dawson	r.f.	Lee
Webster	l.f.	Woo
Counts	c.	Hoh, Tsu
Foret	r.g.	Mo
Watkins	l.g.	Wong

Goals from field:—Lee 5, Woo 4, Counts 4, Dawson 2, Foret 2, Hoh 2, Tsu 1.

Goals from foul:—Foret 1, Hoh 1.

Referee:—K. S. Chang.

Soochow To Play Decisive Game With St. John's Friday

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Soochow, November 26.—The football game scheduled to be played here on Friday, November 28th, when the fast St. John's aggregation comes to engage Soochow University on the latter's grounds, bids fair to be a decisive battle. The local outfit looked like a championship team after its decided victory over Southeastern in the opening game, but the tie with Nanking and the defeat last Saturday at the hands of Shanghai College changes the appearance of things.

Whether Soochow is to figure at all in this year's race will be determined by the outcome of Friday's game. Soochow has lost one good man—T. F. Lea, their fast wing—but Athletic Director Willard Nash states that their team has been augmented by the arrival of two good players from the University's Law School in Shanghai, and that the team will undoubtedly put up a stiff fight.

Due to the many out-of-town visitors for the opening of the new Science Hall on Saturday, a record crowd is expected to witness the struggle, which is set for 3 p.m. Friday.

Shanghai College Elevens Play At Nanking This Week

The Shanghai College Varsity and Middle School Football elevens are playing during the week-end at Nanking. The Varsity is scheduled to play Southeastern University on Thursday afternoon and Nanking University on Saturday afternoon, while the Middle School is scheduled to play the Government School Team on Thursday afternoon. The Middle School Team is also scheduled to play Nanking Middle School Team on Saturday. The teams expect to return to Shanghai on Sunday afternoon.

M.C.C. Wins From New South Wales By Three Wickets

(Reuter's Service)

Sydney, November 25.—The match between M.C.C. and New South Wales was concluded here today, M.C.C. winning by three wickets.

New South Wales, who had overnight scored 179 for 8 wickets in their second innings, continued batting this morning in glorious weather and on a good wicket before 17,000 spectators. Their innings altogether lasted for 278 minutes and produced 221 runs. Andrews batted in masterly fashion for 68 not out. He hit eight fours. Tyldesley took six wickets for 83 and Tate three for 59.

M.C.C. then hit off the runs required to win for the loss of seven wickets. The chief scorers were Hobbs 81, Chapman 72, Hendren 46 and Sutcliffe 45. Hobbs batted in graceful style for 114 minutes but only hit four fours.

Score: New South Wales 271 and 221; M.C.C. 193 and 301 for seven wickets.

Fight Pictures Here

The Olympic Theater last night gave the first exhibition in this city of the Wills-Firpo and Dempsey-Gibbon bouts. The films were good, particularly the fight between Wills and Firpo, which was very clear and showed excellent photography. In addition to the regular fight pictures, some training stunts of the fighters were also shown. Firpo is shown boxing with Joe Stoessel and old Jack O'Brien, who is still game and going.

Prior to the pictures there was a rope-skipping exhibition by Young Domingo, a clever local boxer, and a show of muscular tension and control by Alberto, the high-class flyweight who recently arrived from Manila and knocked out a couple of good boys in the ring here.

On Saturday evening, November 29, the Shanghai American School will present the first of the series of plays which the school dramatic committee has planned for this year. Saturday evening's production is to be "Suppressed Desires," one of the funniest of the comedies of Susan Glaspell. It is a one-act satire on the modern trend of psychoanalysis and although far removed from blatant, studied comedy for mere comedy's sake, it is spontaneously clever in incident and humorous in its lines. The time of the performance for Saturday evening is 7:45 o'clock and in consideration of the fact that amateurs are easily confused by the interruption caused by those arriving after the performance has begun, the directors have announced that the doors will be closed promptly at 7:45 and will not be opened until the close of the first scene. The admission prices are, sixty cents for adults and twenty cents for children.

In view of the many conflicting reports about conditions in Peking, a Far Eastern Times motorcar drove the other afternoon 20 miles through every part of the capital. A most remarkable condition of tranquility was noted everywhere. Except small guards of field-troops at the Palace-Gates there was not a soldier to be seen anywhere, the patrolling being entirely in the hands of police. Outside Prince Ch'un's Palace there was a very light guard and for the first time under the Republic it can be said that Peking has been demilitarised. The center of disturbance has moved elsewhere.

Round 2 Of Junior Golf Championship

Pancho Villa, World's Flyweight Champion

In one of the greatest popular receptions every extended to anyone in the history of the Philippine Islands, Pancho Villa, flyweight champion of the world, returned to Manila November 26, the city turning out en masse to meet him. The crowd jammed the docks and lined up along the shore for a mile or more to see the first world's champion that the Philippine Islands have produced. A flotilla to receive him, a water and land parade, receptions and banquets ad infinitum, the great throng with their cheers and shouts, the brass band and the shriek of auto horns, created a pandemonium of welcome to the young champion.

Villa is a wonderful example of a boy who has literally fought his way up from nothing. Ten years ago Francisco Gilledo, a little Filipino urchin from the villages, arrived in Muelle de la Industria. There he spent all his spare time in athletics, particularly baseball and boxing, and it was five years later that the boy was noticed by Francisco Villa, the fight manager, who took a liking to the youngster, then in his fifteenth year, and adopted him. The boy, who took the name of Pancho Villa, assuming the name of his foster-father, appeared in the Olympic Stadium in Manila in 1919 for the first time against Kid Moro, whom he stopped in two rounds, receiving one and a half pesos for the fight. June 17 last year Villa won the world's flyweight title by knocking out Jimmy Wilde in New York before a $250,000 house, of which Villa got the biggest slice.

SHANGHAI APPEARANCE

Villa is the first world's champion to appear in a ring in Shanghai, and he got a splendid reception when he appeared at the Carlton two weeks ago here. The exclusive picture shown above was accompanied by a note asking us to thank the public and the Oriental Boxing Association for the kindness extended to him during his short stay here.

The pleasure's all ours, Pancho, and we hope to see you again some day. It's not every champion that will stop off here to give a show for a few hundred people such as us after he has been fighting for G. $250,000 houses.

Villa was met by the whole Filipino colony in Shanghai when he arrived here, with the exception of one elderly lady who was down with rheumatism and had to send her compliments by messenger. He was obviously glad to see many of his old pals, as some of the boys now fighting here have met Pancho in the ring in years past, and the champion, though boyishly delighted with all the honors showered upon him, doesn't forget his friends of the old days when a few pesos was the reward for a greulling and heart-breaking fight. It was largely in response to the appeal from some of these old friends that Pancho agreed to give his exhibition in the ring here the next night, and added to his boxing show a remarkable exhibition of rope-skipping, as well as a ukelele solo which demonstrated his ability as an A1 fighter.

It should be added that the money which Villa received for his exhibition here last Monday night, one-half of the receipts, he turned over to local Filipinos for the assistance of any of his countrymen who might be on their uppers here from time to time.

TO FIGHT GOLDSTEIN

Villa is now back home—back in his native Philippines. It is almost settled that he is going to meet Abie Goldstein in Manila next February. He has already defeated Goldstein, but Abie, who has since become the bantam-weight champion of the world, wants to fight again, and Pancho is willing, and is a candidate for the bantam title.

Energy Locked Up In Atoms To Be Freed

Research Work Holds Out Hope Of Revolutionary Discovery

Easton, Pa., Oct. 17.—Dr. Gerald L. Wendt, head of the Department of Physics and Chemistry at Pennsylvania State College, said here today that experiments he had already conducted gave "reasonable promise" that he would discover the secret of atomic energy and succeed in releasing it for the benefit of mankind.

This would mean the virtual reconstruction of civilization through a new and immeasurable source of energy which would make the world independent of coal and oil deposits, hydroelectric and every other form of power known at present, it was said by Dr. Wendt and by other leading scientists who are here for the intersectional meeting of the Lehigh Valley, Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey Sections of the American Chemical Society at Lafayette College.

In his experiments Dr. Wendt placed a tungsten wire in a vacuum tube, through which he shot energy, with the result that more energy came out than went in and the tungsten was transformed into helium. The whole problem, it was explained by Leon L. Jenks, Professor of Chemistry at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, is one of controlling the spontaneous disintegration of elements.

"I have been using a temperature of 60,000 degrees Fahrenheit in my investigations," said Dr. Wendt. "The sun is only 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and the hottest star is 40,000 degrees. At that temperature we know that there is no evidence of metals in a star, and that it is composed of hydrogen and helium gases. As it cools we get more complex elements. Hitherto one of the great difficulties has been that we could not get a sufficient degree of temperature in our laboratories, but now we can produce heat higher than the hottest stars. I have been using 100,000 volts of electricity for this purpose.

"Copper, gold and iron are elements, and thus far we have been unable to change them, although we can combine some of them with with oxygen. This is not saying that it can't be done, and I think I have reasonable grounds for the belief that I will be able to unlock atomic energy. Theoretically it is there, but it is possible there may be something wrong with the theory.

"If I succeed in my endeavors it will mean the revolution of civilization. Energy is its base, and it is energy that makes all other things valuable. It is one thing to show that the atomic energy is there and another thing to unlock it and make use of it, but I have already peeped into the first little crack."

REVOLUTIONARY POSSIBILITIES IN THE ATOM

Dr. W. F. Hillebrand, chief chemist of the Bureau of Standards at Washington and the discoverer of helium, said that if Dr. Wendt were successful in his encavors he would "unquestionably revolutionise life."

"At present it is possible to control the spontaneous disintegration of metals on an infinitesimal scale by using the greatest forces at our command," Dr. Hillebrand said, "but the use of these forces is beyond the ability of most laboratories."

"Assuming that Dr. Wendt could release atomic energy and do it cheaply," said Professor Jenks, "he would have found the source of all the heat and power that the world needs. But we must be able to get it cheaper than we can get coal and petroleum at present. It is possible today to operate a motor car with alcohol, but alcohol, costs 75 cents a gallon, and gasoline is cheaper. That, by the way, is one reason why we will never see 'dollar gasoline.'

"Such a discovery as Dr. Wendt hopes to make would mean that all existing forms of power would be obsolete. Locked up within the confines of a penknife—if it could be released—is enough atomic energy to send the largest ocean liner across the Atlantic.

"The tapping of such a vast force would supply power for steamships, railroads and industries of all kinds, not to mention the automobile. We should never have to worry about our coal supply giving out or our oil fields becoming exhausted or the further utilization of hydroelectric power. It took millions of years in coal and oil, and now we are scattering it like a lot of drunken sailors.

"I do not believe there is great danger of a financial panic for, if atomic energy is found, I am inclined to think that the process will be a gradual one. It would certainly be more fantastic than anything that has thus far been even imagined by the brain of man, but the discovery is not beyond the present trend of scientific thought."

Dr. W. D. Bancroft, Professor of Chemistry at Cornell University, and a world-wide authority upon the subject, said that such a discovery as Dr. Wendt hoped to make would be "as revolutionary for the world as the discovery of electricity."

"We are able today to disintegrate lead into rydrogen," said Dr. Bancroft, "but the problem is how to do it spontaneously—how to control spontaneous disintegration. Alpha particles have been used in bombardment and successful efforts have been made to disintegrate nitrogen, but the expense has been enormous. We have spontaneous disintegration in the case of radium but, thus far, we can't control it."

ATOM STRUCTURE OF METALS

The chemists devoted the day to a symposium on the plasticity of numerous substances, the outstanding feature of which was a paper by Dr. Wheeler P. Davey of the General Electric Company research laboratory at Schenectady.

Dr. Davey believes he has discovered why some metals are brittle while others are ductile and malleable. He presented the results of experiments which show how different metals, and alloys of metals, can have dissimilar properties. The difference, according to Dr. Davey, depends upon the arrangement of the atoms of the metal. Even though a distance of hundredths of millionths of an inch separate the particles, he said that their arrangement could be determined by use of the X-ray.

"Metals are crystaline substances," said Dr. Davey, "and their atoms are arranged in orderly fashion, following geometric designs. In liquids and in such non-crystaline substances as glass, the arrangement is chaotic—instead of an army there is a mob.

"A piece of metal is usually composed of small crystals which are chaotically arranged. It has been found that the metals which are ductile, such as copper and lead, crystalize in the face-centred cubic lattice arrangement, to use the scientific nomenclature. That is, the atoms are arranged at corners of a cube, with another atom in the centre of each side of the cube.

"Metals which are brittle are, in general, crystals of body-centred cubic lattice arrangements. They also have atoms at each corner of a cube, but instead of another atom in each cube face, they have one atom in the actual centre of the cube.

"When these unit cubes are built up thousands upon top of thousands, which must be done to obtain even a small particle of the substance, lines of atoms are noticeable in several directions. Just as in the case of a regularly planted orchard, there are many directions in which the atoms are in parallel rows. The relative distance between these rows depends upon geometrical design. Extending these rows into the third dimension, similarly parallel planes are produced. It is on the arrangement of these planes that the qualities of the metals seem to depend.

ATOMS ARE INTERLINKED

"When a face-centred cubic metal, such as lead or copper, is bent, the planes which contain more closely packed atoms and which are relatively far apart, slide into each other. Every atom in one of these planes is linked to three atoms in the plane above it and to three in the plane below it so that the planes tend to hold tightly to each other while they are sliding.

"In the face-centred structure such planes may be found in many directions in the crystal, so that there is very little tendency for the crystal to crack open. Then the metals is ductile or tenacious. It is easily bent without breaking and may be hammered and drawn into wires, etc.

"The reverse is generally true of body-centred structure. Here the planes which contain closely packed atoms are not held together very tightly, because every atom in one of these planes is linked to only two atoms in the plane above it and two atoms in the plane below it. When these planes slide on each other they tend to crack apart. Therefore, such metals cannot be mechanically worked as easily as the first mentioned ones.

"The X-rays enter in making the measurements by which the structures are determined. To measure directly such small distances as must be encountered in dealing with spacing between atoms is, at present at least, impossible. When atoms are regularly arranged, as in crystals, they will bend or deflect a beam of X-rays, and it is possible from this reflection to calculate the spacings between atoms. Then, by mathematical relationships, the atomic distance and arrangements can be determined."

Consumption Of Oil Nearly Overtaking World's Production

Considerable Quantities Are Uncovered In Argentine By Anglo-Persian

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 25.—Presiding at a meeting of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, Sir Charles Greenway, Chairman, pointed out that in the past year the consumption of oil seemed to be overtaking the production. This would have happened if the new fields in the United States had not been brought in, but the consumption of petrol had enormously increased throughout the world, nearly counterbalancing the increased production.

Further developments in the Company's new field fully confirmed the valuableness of it, and further drilling in the Argentine had led to striking considerable quantities of oil. The Company's production in the present financial year, Sir Charles concluded, should be between 4,250,000 and 4,500,000 tons.

Money-Lenders Of China Prey On Lowly Borrowers

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, November 22.—One often comes to wonder how the poor in China manage to tide over their financial difficulties, there being no efficient money-lending agencies provided for them. The existing systems of lending to the needy who have little or nothing as securities are horrible and should be abandoned if social progress is to be achieved at all.

As in other countries, the principal money lenders in China are naturally banking institutions. But the banking service is only available to the prominent individuals or those with securities. To the poor and needy, banks in China extend no credit, even at a high rate of interest. A poor Chinese may, however, obtain loans from professional money lenders, if he has real property such as house and land deeds to offer as security. In this case, an interest rate of from 1.8 percent to 3 percent per month or 21.6 per cent to 36 percent per annum is commonly charged.

For those who have only small articles to offer as security, the more popular way of obtaining a loan is to go to the pawnshop where interest is charged at 2 to 3 percent per month, that is, 24 to 36 percent per annum. As a rule, only an amount equivalent to half of the market value of the article can be obtained, or even less sometimes. There is no definite way of making an estimate. The period for the loan is limited to at most eighteen months (in local pawnbroking establishments, it is generally limited to from 4 to 12 months). Consequently, a piece of desirable property may easily be forclosed on by the establishment. Although there is every disadvantage in borrowing money in this way, nevertheless the proverty-stricken ones find it most convenient and helpful. Pawnshops, though very often condemned, are found to be necessary to the poor people as agencies for lending money.

LOAN SHARKS, TOO

Finally, money may be borrowed from loan sharks. In this case, the poor—generally the laborer, street peddler, ricsha coolie, etc., are the victims of more unreasonable treatment. Such loans, generally known as Yin Tse Chien or in this locality as Qua Tse Chien, are made on the basis of doubling capital in a year or even less. They are for comparatively small amounts, varying from a few thousand cash to thirty or more dollars. For a sum above thirty dollars, however, it is necessary for the borrower to furnish some sort of written guarantee from a reliable store or individual. For smaller sums, a word of recommendation from a mutual friend is all that is necessary. The system of repaying the loan is generally thus:-

The borrower is required to sign a paper promising to pay the lender a certain amount a day for a certain number of days. However, the borrowed sum is not mentioned in the document. For instance, if $15 is borrowed for a period of 60 days, the document only signifies that the borrower promises to pay the lender 30 cents per day for sixty days commencing from a certain date. Thus, the interest for the loan amounts to $3 which is excessive for a sum of only $15 and for a period of only sixty days. Interest at this rate is about 120 percent per annum.

In actual practice, the money under this system is often lent in silver and paid back in coppers, which further bewilders the ignorant borrower and helps him to lose sight of the rate of interest he is paying. In many places such sharp practice is prohibited by the local authorities, but the system is too deeply rooted to be eradicated, especially when no other adequate credit system can take its place. However, as the borrowers of such money are mostly homeless and shiftless people, the lenders must keep constant watch over their loans. They will use any method to bring a delinquent to book, partly because they have no redress in litigation, loans on these terms not being recognised. For this reason the lender must be one who is able to maintain his prestige among the poor and helpless by physical prowess, or he must employ those who can maintain such prestige for him in the same way.

In Hankow the ricsha coolies have been found to be the principal victims of these loan sharks. Investigation has shown that these poor coolies borrow money from their "Head Coolie" and are subject to the treatment described above.

Obituary

MRS. DOROTHEA WEGENER

Funeral services were held on Tuesday at Bubbling Well Cemetery for the late Mrs. Dorothea Wegener, who died at the Paulun Hospital at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The Dean, the Very Rev. C. F. Symons, M. A., conducted the services. The chief mourners were Mrs. Wegener's children, Ivy, Jennie, Anna, Hermann, Mr. and Mrs. R. Wegener, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Spencer, and her aged sister. Capt. Fuller, and Messrs. W. J. Drummond, P. Pfanner, J. Abbass, P. Klyhn and H. Schmuser acted as pallbearers.

Mrs. Wegener, who was 57 years of age, had a large circle of friends in Shanghai who mourn her loss.

Many beautiful offerings were sent in, amongst which were those from the following:—

LAWYERS PRAISE SPEECH OF MR. CHAS. HUGHES

Exposure Of Third Party Menace Was Timely, Says Mr. Breed

New York, Oct. 17.—Discussing the speech of Secretary Hughes at Carnegie Hall Wednesday night, William C. Breed, Chairman of the Lawyers' Constitutional Committee, called it a masterpiece yesterday, adding that voters, irrespective of party, should study it to ward off the "menace to our Constitution from the La Follette program of regulating the Supreme Court."

"Mr. Hughes last night placed the issue of constitutional government squarely and clearly before the people," said Mr. Breed. "He showed that the only result from the adoption of the doctrines of Mr. La Follette would be to make Congress the supreme authority over the Supreme Court, the executive function and even the Constitution itself, because, under Mr. La Follette's theory it is proposed to give Congress the right to override any interpretation of our constitutional rights as made by the Supreme Court. This is not understood by the people, and the statement is most timely. If the average citizen realised the seriousness of Mr. La Follette's doctrine, Democrats and Republicans would vote for Coolidge if for no other reason than to sustain our form of Government.

THE SUPREME COURT PROPOSAL

"It seems to me that Mr. Hughes did not sufficiently emphasize Mr. La Follette's proposal that all Federal Judges, including Justices of the Supreme Court, should be elected for a term not exceeding ten years. This policy in itself would put our entire Federal judiciary into the maelstrom of politics and utterly destroy the strength of our judicial system. Assume a picture of a Justice of the United States Supreme Court approaching the end of a ten-year term and being obliged to go out and resort to the usual political campaigns that are necessary to bring about his re-election. What would be the independence of his thought in questions relating to the bigger issues concerning the country immediately prior to his running for office, such as rights of labor, water power, railroads, taxes, &c.? And if he were elected would not his political enemies declare that his election had been influenced by these interests?

"It is not untimely to have brought out in this campaign a discussion of the value of sustaining the fundamental rights of life, liberty and property as set out and protected by our Constitution. There are approximately three million first voters, including many women, who for the first time will cast a ballot in a Presidential election. A vote in this campaign is not a vote for a candidate, but rather a vote to sustain our present form of government. The La Follette doctrine, as Mr. Hughes explains, amounts to nothing more than a renunciation of our Constitution and a bestowal of the supreme authority upon Congress."

CRITICISM FROM ROE

Gilbert E. Roe, Northeastern Director of the La Follette campaign, replied yesterday to criticism of the Wisconsin Senator contained in the Hughes speech. Mr. Roe said:

"In his speech in New York Mr. Hughes, who sat placidly in the Harding Cabinet with Fall and Daugherty, put forth the pretense that dreadful things would happen to government in America unless the party of Fall and Daugherty and Forbes is returned to power. He professed to believe that Senator La Follette was heading a movement to overthrow our form of government.

"It is painful to see a Secretary of State indulging in such paltry hypocrisy, and I infer that Mr. Hughes's intellectual probity must have been severely damaged by his close association with Daugherty and Fall. Mr. Hughes, who now professes such concern about keeping up respect for the Government had not a word of criticism when some of his late associates and colleagues were debauching Government departments, scrapping their constitutional oaths and bringing dishonor upon our institutions. He now sets forth the extraordinary view that thoughtful citizens who desire to cleanse the temple of our Government are public enemies.

"If our Government is menaced, the menace comes from the very corruptionists, and the sinister forces behind them, against whom Mr. Hughes has never lifted his voice. It certainly is not menaced by the progressive proposals of thoughtful, forward-looking men and women with whom Mr. Hughes has nothing in common."

MORE WORRIES FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.

In New York they have undertaken to teach the children politeness in the schoolroom, with a regular period for observance of acts of courtesy and an explanation of the reasons. The photograph shows the gentleman surrendering his glass of water to the little lady who awaits.

Admiral Wen Takes Office As Governor Of Kiaochow

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tsingtao, Nov. 16.—Admiral Wen Shou-teh assumed the concurrent post of Governor of Kiaochow Territory at the Administration Building yesterday morning. Many persons were present at the ceremonies, including the heads of the various departments, representatives from all the civic and business associations and members of the Admiral's naval staff.

The Admiral announced that he was assuming office under an appointment from Tuli Cheng Shih-chi, of Shantung Province. At the same time he would retain his command over the Po-hai squadron.

Although this would appear to complicate matters, in view of the reported naming of General Liang Shan-tung as Tupan by the Central Government, on the advice of Marshal Tuan Chi-jui, there is no apprehension felt in official circles here. Shantung, by reason of its policy of armed neutrality, claims to be definitely divorced from the Central Government and in no way subject to its orders. The public is of the opinion that in view of admiral Wen's appointment, the Central Government mandate will be withdrawn.

FOURTH IN TWO YEARS

In assuming office Admiral Wen became the fourth Governor of Tsingtao and environs within two years. General Wang Han-chang, his predecessor, held only a temporary appointment following the ousting of Mr. Kao En-hung, who has been detained in Tsinan. Mr. Kao replaced Mr. Hsiung Ping-chi last April.

General Wang still continues as Defence Commissioner and Administrator of martial law in Tsingtao. It is not known when martial law will be terminated.

Indicating the sharp cleavage between Shantung and Peking, Tuli Cheng has named Mr. Li Chung-yo as Managing-Director of the Kiaochow-Tsinan Railway. He formerly served as Director of one of the Shantung arsenals. This is in direct conflict with the naming of Mr. T. C. Chu, former Vice-Managing Director here, by the Ministry of Communications.

MR. CHU IN PEKING

Mr. Chu, hearing of Mr. Li's assumption of office, has remained in Peking and, it is said, will not come here, at least until the position is clear. Mr. Chu has had considerable experience as a railway executive and is a graduate of Harvard University. While here he served as the first president of the American College Club of Tsingtao.

After last week's panic, things are returning to normal here. There have been some dismissals in the Administration, but not so many as expected. In fact, the majority of officials and employees still retain their positions.

COOLIDGE ASKS FORD FOR NEW SHOALS OFFER

Hopes Manufacturer Will Again Be Interested In Project

Washington, Oct. 18.—President Coolidge, in a letter to Henry Ford to-day, expressed the hope that Mr. Ford would renew his interest in the Muscle Shoals property in case Congress determined it was best to restore it to private ownership. The President's letter amounts to a request to Mr. Ford to renew his offer when the time is opportune.

The letter was in response to one from Mr. Ford, dated October 15, formally withdrawing his offer for Muscle Shoals. The President said that on account of the delay and the probable shifting in conditions he could understand how Mr. Ford might feel justified in not keeping his offer open for a longer period.

While there was no comment on the Muscle Shoals question at the White house, it is the feeling here that if President Coolidge is re-elected he will urge that some disposition be made of the Shoals property to insure its utilisation in a way beneficial to the public. Following is the letter of Mr. Ford:

"My dear Mr. President: On July 8, 1921, there was submitted to the War Department, upon their invitation to the writer, an offer for leasing the government property at Muscle Shoals.

"After many conferences, hearings, etc., this proposal was amended on January 25, 1922, in which form it is still pending in Congress.

"Inasmuch as so much time has already elapsed we are unable to wait and delay what plans we have any longer for action by Congress and I am consequently asking that you consider this as a withdrawal of said offer.

Very truly yours,
"HENRY FORD."

In reply the President wrote:

"My dear Mr. Ford: Your letter withdrawing your offer for the purchase of Muscle Shoals has been received. On account of the delay and probable shifting in conditions, I can understand how you may feel justified in not keeping your offer open for a longer period. I trust, however, that should the Congress conclude that it is best to restore this property to private ownership you will at that time renew your interest in the project.

"Very truly yours,
"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

Psycho-Rhythmic Dance Exponents Demonstrate Art

Mr. And Mrs. Bovingdon Give Private Showing At The Carlton

At a private showing in the Carlton yesterday, John Bovingdon, founder of the "Artists' Church," a dance temple in Carnegie Hall, New York City, and exponent of the new art of psycho-rhythmic dancing, gave three new art dances.

The three dances, about which the artist has written word fantasies of simple, lyric beauty, were "The Power Dance," "The Temple Dance," and "The Fairy Tale." The first, in the words of the artist, is a story of prehistoric days when Power roamed over the earth. "In his blood simmered the vitalities of time, upon his skin played the colors and perfumes of the sky, and he became man." The Temple Dance is a continuation of the fantasy, as all the dances are given in a series.

In this, the dancer relates that "Some time later, wandering alone across the world, he finds love and a pillared temple, and is happy," while in "The Fairy Tale" we have the conclusion of the fantasy. "Still later, on a magic playground, he weaves a fairy tale from the smiles and the humming songs of his playmates."

Each of the dances is in different mood and tempo, and to them Mr. Bovingdon brings a rare intelligence which results in a beautifully expressive interpretation for the audience. He first conceives the dance and then interprets it, so that his method is the reverse of most aesthetic dancers of the present day who are content simply to express the fantasies of other minds. The aim of the Bovingdons, for Mrs. Bovingdon is also a dancer, is to create always, to be the composers rather than the interpreters.

Mr. Bovingdon's dances are performed with a supple grace that is fascinating to watch; he is a young man, muscular and athletic, but when he dances his movements partake of the fluid grace of a young Pan.

His audience yesterday was most enthusiastic and it is rumored that he will give some dances in public in the near future.

The Rheumatism Problem

Why are there so many failures in the treatment of rheumatism? It is because in such cases wrong methods of treatment are applied. The poisons of rheumatism are in the blood and only through the blood can the disease be fought successfully. As a remedy for rheumatism Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a splendid record because they are a uniquely powerful blood restorative and tonic. They rapidly make new rich blood and they make it so pure and strong that the rheumatic poison is driven out until not a trace remains. Thousands of proofs of this have been received from many parts of the world. Here is evidence from South Africa:—

Mr. G. W. Diedricks, of Swellendam, Cape Colony, says:

"For three years I suffered agonies through rheumatic pains in my back and shoulders. The pain sometimes compelled me to give up my work, my sleep was always broken and restless. I tried external remedies, but only got slight temporary relief. One day a book was left at my door about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I saw therein cures of cases like mine, I took a course of them, and am now cured of this trying ailment."

A steady course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do for you what they have done for others: start them today and begin to get well and strong. From any chemist, or direct from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai. $1.50 per bottle, $8 for six bottles, post free.

Report To Peking On Plague In Manchuria

The North Manchurian Plague Prevention Service has just issued a summary of its twelfth annual report, addressed to the Minister for Foreign Affairs at Peking.

The report follows:

"It may be at once stated that during these past twelve months, the plague situation throughout the world was serious.

"In India, plague was prevalent, for between October 1923 and May 1924, 238,000 cases were reported, resulting in 180,000 deaths. The most severely affected district was the Madras Presidency.

"In 1923 there was a general increase of plague throughout the world, in the Kirghiz and Kalmuck regions in Russia. In British India, in the Strait Settlements, in Egypt, Siam, Mesopotamia, Persia, Africa, Madagascar, and South America. Moreover, there does not seem to be any improvement in the situation in 1924.

"Coming nearer home, Hongkong appeared to be but little affected, while Japan, Foochow, Amoy, Antung and Nanking reported some cases.

"North Manchuria has been free from plague, though two cases were reported from Substation 83 near Dauria in August, 1924 and one case from Haranor village in September 1924, both places being in Soviet territory, 30-50 miles west of the Manchurian frontier.

"In Chita, in December 1923, two laboratory workers of the Veterinary Institute, a lady doctor and a male assistant died of pneumonic plague. The lady doctor accidently spilled an emulsion of plague culture on her apron, became ill 5½ days afterwards and died 4 days later. The male assistant was infected by her when he went to visit her.

"The constant menace of Manchuria by plague is from Transbaikalia. There is an enormous territory involving practically the whole of Central Asia, from the Hingan Mountains in Manchuria to the Ural Provinces in Asiatic Russia where a rodent, the marmot (or tarabagan) abounds. This animal yields a good fur, its flesh is eaten and its fat is utilised, so much so that it almost stands for money to the natives and is eagerly hunted. We have proved conclusively by long and painstaking investigation that the tarabagan harbors the plague bacillus and acts as a reservoir for it. In fact, it is infected by a chronic form of plague, and this chronic form may change into an acute one, resulting in an epidemic of plague among the tarabagans.

"If a man were to skin a plague stricken tarabagan, he may be infected through wounds on his hands. Our latest research showed that the fleas of the tarabagan can transmit plague from one animal to another and this mode of infection has also to be considered. In whichever way the man is infected, he suffers from bubonic plague. As a result, secondary plague pneumonia may set in and he may infect his contacts through the breath by coughing and sneezing. His contracts will now suffer from primary plague pneumonia and may spread the disease to others.

"This then is the way an epidemic of pneumonic plague starts in this part of the world and given other favorable conditions such as overcrowding and rapid transportation, the disease will spread like fire. The plague problem is essentially a tarabagan problem and it is our constant endeavour to solve it by research.

Other infectious diseases.

"North Manchuria may be said to be free from any serious epidemics during the period under review.

"Cholera did not make its appearance though there were a few cases reported from Shanghai, Wuchang, and Dairen. During the hot weather large numbers of enteritis, typhoid and dysentery cases were seen. Several cases of encephalitis lethargica were discovered in Dairen, Port Arthur, Seoul and Changchun, and doubtless there were sporadic cases in North Manchuria as well.

"This disease is often confused in the lay press with sleeping sickness (Trypanosomiasis), a sickness conveyed by the bite of the tsetse fly in Africa. There is no doubt that encephalitis lethargica is infectious and that it is increasing, for 4,000 cases were reported in Japan up to September 5, 1924. In England, 2475 cases have been notified between first January and May 17, the chief centres affected being London, Manchester, Sheffield, Birmingham and Bristol.

"Malaria is comparatively rare locally, though it is prevalent in the Amur River ports. Formerly it was not prevalent in Siberia, but now it is widely spread. Similarly the Ussuri District was fairly free from Malaria but with the introduction of rice cultivation and the close contact with the Koreans many of whom are malarial subjects in the valley of the river Mo, a great increase in the number of Malaria cases is the result.

NEW LABORATORY

The New Laboratory, measuring 105ft. by 32ft., is directly connected with the office building. We have now a well fitted-up place in which important research work on plague and other disease problems may be carried out. In this respect we are fortunate in enlisting the services of Drs. Pollitzer, Jettmar and Lin who are well trained and experienced workers.

"In this new building, there are rooms for plague work, serological work, chemical analysis, clinical diagnosis, preparation of media, and for library and museum.

"I beg to send a few photos of the building with this report.

"The Antung Quarantine Hospital, built with an appropriation of Tls. 30,000 from the Customs, was established this summer, Dr. W. H. Shih, Medical Officer stationed in Tahelho, was appointed to take charge of the hospital in August.

"The Antung Quarantine hospital, affiliated to the North Manchurian Plague Prevention Service, is a much felt want and is a great asset to the port. There are but few ports namely, Shanghai, Foochow, Tientsin, Tsingtao, Newchwang, & Dairen on the China coast which can boast of quarantine hospitals, though port Health Officers are appointed in all ports.

"Now if a case of infectious disease is discovered on board a ship in port, and if the port does not possess a quarantine hospital, an awkward and may be dangerous situation at once arises.

"Each of the more important ports of China should have a quarantine hospital staffed by one or more full-time medical officers. The Newchwang Quarantine Hospital may be taken as a model with modifications to suit local conditions. In the absence of epidemics, part of the hospital may be used for general medical and surgical cases. Health propaganda work should also be undertaken.

"All the hospitals should be controlled from a central port and reports of infectious diseases should be exchanged and made known to all ports in order to secure co-operation.

"The following are figures showing the number of out-patients treated at the different station hospitals for each year during the last five years:

	1923-24.	1922-23.	1921-22.	1920-21.	1919-20.
Harbin	15,661	15,343	9,345	5,058	11,468
Tahsiho	7,327	8,037	4,290	4,649	6,585
Sansing	4,379	5,235	4,054	3,631	4,694
Lahasusu	1,569	1,470	2,213	3,229	1,885
Newchwang	4,100	3,693	3,045	3,225	2,230
Manchouli	2,214	2,347	2,291

7. The following comprise the personal of the Service during the past year:

Dr. Wu Lien Teh, Director and C. M. O. (on 1 year's leave to America)

Dr. J. W. H. Chun, Acting Director and C. M. O. (from July, 1924).

Mr. R. C. L. d'Anjou, (Comm. of Customs), Lay Director & Treasurer (up to April, 1924).

Mr. U. Marconi, Acting Comm. of Customs), Lay Director & Treasurer (from May, 1924).

Dr. R. Pollitzer, Bacteriologist, Harbin.

Dr. Lin Chia Swee, Resident Senior Medical Officer, Harbin.

Dr. H. Jettmar, Serologist, Harbin.

Dr. E. B. Young, Resident Senior Medical Officer, Newchwang.

Dr. Shih Chi Liang, Resident Medical Officer, Tahelho.

Dr. Y. M. Kwan, Resident Medical Officer, Sansing.

Dr. Li An, Resident Medical Officer, Manchuli.

Dr. Shih Wei Hua, Resident Medical Officer, Antung.

Dr. Chow Soo Bin, Resident Medical Officer, Harbin.

Mr. Tung Lan Chi, Resident Dresser-in-charge, Lahasusu.

Mrs. Y. C. Y. Cheh, Deputy Female Medical Officer, Tahelho.

Miss. N. C. Chung, Senior Nurse, Harbin.

Miss. Chu Tsai Chen, Senior Nurse, Newchwang.

"In conclusion, I take this opportunity to express thanks to the Chinese Government, Chinese Eastern Railway and South Manchurian Railway for facilities granted us in the prosecution of our work. We are also much indebted to the Customs officers at various stations in Manchuria for frequent asistance rendered to the Service. Finally I beg to remark on the faithful and unfailing devotion to duty shown by members of our staff."

NEW DRIVE FOR HEALTH PLANNED IN PHILIPPINES

Rockefeller Foundation Will Establish Sanitary Demonstrations

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Nov. 17.—With the assurance of financial support of its work here for another year as shown by a liberal provision in the appropriation bill for 1925, the Rockefeller Foundation will inaugurate a new program for public health improvement in the Philippine Islands next year consisting of the establishment of provincial sanitary demonstrations, according to announcement just made.

At its own expense the foundation will undertake the operation of a provincial sanitary service primarily to demonstrate improved facilities employed in rural sanitary work and also to train Filipino technical assistants who may take over the work after it has been organised.

For more than two years the foundation has conducted an anti-malaria campaign in several provinces in cooperation with the Philippine health service. With the completion of purely experimental work on the habits of mosquitoes and other carriers of malaria which has been conducted in two provinces of Luzon, it is expected that early in the coming year the results of the experiments will be applied in other parts of the Philippines.

The foundation also started a successful anti-hookworm campaign several months ago and has now been given over to the Philippine health service.

Sores from Wrist to Elbow
"Completely Healed"

Our portrait is of Mr. John Kidd, of 17, Mill Lane, Kilmarnock, Scotland, who writes:—"My right arm became covered with sores from wrist to elbow and was useless for over two years. I tried different ointments and so-called cures, but they never did me any good. Then I tried your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and the sores soon began to heal up and power began to come back to my arm, so I persevered with the Mixture, and after having four bottles am glad to say my arm is completely healed up and I have now the full use of it." In a further letter over a twelvemonth later Mr. Kidd writes: "I have had no return of my complaint; my arm is still as sound as a bell and never troubles me in the least."

Vladivostock As Free Port Means Nothing Without 'Free Trade'

Some Of The Problems That Confront The Trader Who Would Do Business With Russia

By Geo. W. Missemer

The announcement made several days ago that Vladivostock was to be opened as a free port has not caused any great commotion in Shanghai commercial circles as even under the most favorable circumstances Russian business has never loomed up large in Shanghai's trade. Even in the "good-old days"—that is, good for the merchants who were connected with the trade—before the Russo-Japanese war, when Port Arthur and Dalny were still in Russian hands and when enormous quantities of foreign goods were bought by the Russian government, and when Vladivostock was in the hands of the old Russian government before the outbreak of the Revolution, the proportion of Shanghai's interest in these Russian ports was very small. One of the reasons for this was that, generally speaking, the Conference steamer rates which applied to Shanghai did not apply to the Russian ports, and cargo from Europe (probably also from America) could be brought out on the very same ship that stopped at Shanghai, much cheaper to the Russian ports than if the goods had been destined for this port.

Taking up the question now of the opening of Vladivostock as a free port, the details of which are not yet quite clear, it may be stated as a broad general proposition that the opening of the city or a district around it as a free port will mean very little indeed unless at the same time it is proposed to open up Soviet Russia to the foreign trader—and of this there has not yet been any indication.

The opening of Vladivostock as a free port may have some little influence in throwing the scale in favor of the route by way of Vladivostock to Harbin or other North Manchurian towns as against the route by way of Dairen. The rail haul by way of Vladivostock is much shorter than by way of Dairen, and that alone makes the former route cheaper, and besides, owing to the fact that the gauges of the Japanese and Russian railways change, transhipment must take place at Changchun, and that of course causes extra expense.

There is still another factor that throws the scale more in favor of the route via Vladivostock to Harbin, and that is, as a result of the retrocession of the Russian rights in China, the provisions of an older treaty come into force by reason of which goods entering China on the Pogranitchnayan border are charged one third less duty than if they came up, for instance, from Dairen.

There are certain factors, however, that offset the advantages above described. In modern business transactions, shipments are nearly always financed through a bank and insured. Through shipments from here to Harbin are not looked on favorably by British or American banks or insurance companies, and if one wants to use the services of the Russian organisation "Dalbank," interest and other charges come to more than fifteen percent. To make clear what is meant by the statement above that the opening of Vladivostock as a free port means very little without also the introduction of open opportunity ("free trade") for the foreign trader at Vladivostock, it is to be borne in mind that a trading license at Vladivostock costs 1,000 gold roubles, and another deposit of gold 1,000 roubles must be made to the Soviet government as a sort of guarantee that you will abide by the law as regards the profits you make. But that is not all. There is the "Internal Loan" that has to be taken into consideration. In theory, subscriptions to it are voluntary, but in practice the trader is obliged to subscribe to the loan to the extent of fifty percent of the "taxes" paid, and this means a minimum of another 500 gold roubles that must be subscribed to the "Internal Loan." (a total of at least $1250 gold) When the trader gets the documents in exchange for the money, he finds them marked "not negotiable," and they cannot be used as collateral at any bank to raise money. In other words the "loan" has no marketable value now, and what it will be worth at maturity is altogether problematical. "Loans" made by the Kerensky government are worth nothing and Soviet "loans" will probably go the same road as German marks, concerning which an announcement is being made today by the Shanghai banks.

It will now be interesting to examine the question of what profits the merchant can make who establishes himself at Vladivostock under present conditions. Is he going to do business to pay the profits to enable him to pay the above expenses in addition to the ordinary trading expenses? Not one single little parcel can be sent to Soviet Russia without the securing of a license, which is a matter of considerable difficulty, costs something, and takes considerable time,—this on the admission of the Soviet officials themselves.

The only customers that the trader who would establish himself in Vladivostock even after it becomes a free port would have would be the various branches of the Soviet government. What will the Soviet government do when they find that the trader has brought his goods as far as Vladivostock, tempted by the fact that it is a free port? It will do the natural thing, offer him a ridiculous price, as the officials know that the trader will have no other customer than the few there are in the restricted area of the free territory, which offers very little opportunity to make enough profits to pay the exaction of at least $1250 gold that is first levied before the trader sets himself up in business.

Those interested in the Vladivostock question may be interested in the following comments (although not agreeing with those expressed above) appearing in the Japanese English-language newspaper at Dairen:

A Few Hints For Vladivostok Boomers

"We hear from European Russia of the prospective conversion of Vladivostok into a free port. There is little in this report that rouses surprise in us. For, the throwing-open of the Russian Far East (east of Lake Baikal) has been an important problem long pending before Russia has hesitated to throw it open, because it involves a serious effect on the industrial, trade, and colonising issues. Once the Russian Far East be thrown open, Russia, in her present state, would be able to benefit only slightly thereby. On this account the exclusive policy has been held on to. For the very same reason, making Vladivostok a free port can not react favorably on Russia. Once it is made into a free port, the lion's share of the attendant benefit will be gained by the foreigners.

"If the Soviet Russia were to be tempted to make Vladivostok a free port for no other purpose than absorbing produce along the Chinese Eastern Railway, Russia would have to compete with South Manchuria. From the dual standpoint of geography and politics, North Manchuria is inseparable from South Manchuria, which two names are only to distinguish the sphere of Russian influence from that of Japanese influence, now little more than a memory of the past.

"Now that no such distinction exists potentially any longer, common sense and humanity are bound to prevail. Eventually, North Manchuria, that is, in a sense, lagging behind in cultural and social developments, compared with South Manchuria, will be attracted and influenced by the latter. The inertia of the past influence of the Chinese Eastern and South Manchuria Railways may linger for some time, but the strong natural tendency to get blended with each other will mock at any such flimsy barrier. It is hard to imagine if the Vladivostok free port question can hold its own against this predestined tendency.

"Then, South Manchuria has in the background the Port of Dairen equipped in every way in a superior way to Vladivostok.

"Supposing the Vladivostok boomers might try to undermine this background of South Manchuria, what would they do, if the Dairen people should accept the challenge and carry competition to the bitterest end?"

American Dye Industry Makes Vast Strides At Home And Here

Artificial Indigo Paste And Sulphur Black Coming From United States To China In Large Quantities

Not only has the American dye industry been so firmly established that ninety-six per cent. of the domestic consumption is of home manufacture—this preponderance of American manufactured dyes in use in America being partly to be ascribed to the protective tariff—but so expert have American dye manufacturers become and so greatly have manufacturing costs been reduced that American dye manufacturers are able to compete in several important lines with the far-famed German and Swiss manufacturers.

ARTIFICIAL INDIGO

The Chinese customs statistics show some interesting facts in this connection. To take the one item of artificial indigo, of which about twelve million taels worth were imported last year, America supplied more than one fourth, the exact amount to America's credit being Tls. 3,185,029 as against Germany's Tls. 4,404,838 and Switzerland's Tls. 2,221,365. This is one of the articles, curiously enough in which Shanghai does not lead as a consumer. Hankow takes the most of the import, with more than two million taels, with Tientsin, Tsingtao and Shanghai following in the order named. Interesting details of the development of the American dye industry are contained in an article printed in a New York financial journal from the pen of Dr. Charles H. Herty, president of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association of the United States, of which the following are extracts:

Today, two years after the enactment of the Tariff Act of 1922, the American dye industry faces the last obstacle which it must safely hurdle if the work of the last eight years to make America economically independent in the matter of dyes and to build up an industrial reserve for our army and navy is to be thoroughly successful. At such a time it is well to review the race as it has so far been run, and as I look back over the many struggles of this period it brings a thrill such as no steeplechase ever offered and constitutes one of the most fascinating chapters of modern industrial life.

Fair judgment can be obtained best through adequate perspective, and so my memory brings up at once a historical scene in the room of the Ways and Means Committee in Washington on a day in January, 1916, when there assembled a remarkable gathering of the most representative consumers of dyes, together with the few chemists and manufacturers who knew anything at all about the subject, to urge legislation which would insure the development of a domestic dye industry.

SOUGHT PROTECTIVE MEASURES

Scanning the pages of the hearings on Bill H. R. 702, the so-called Hill Bill, I find interesting statements from consumers. For example, on Page 118 Congressman Moore asked of Mr. John P. Wood, "In what position would the United States manufacturers find themselves without a bill of this kind, with those other countries in that situation?"

To which Mr. Wood replied, "They would be perfectly helpless."

On Page 145, Fredrick E. Kip, the president of the Salt's Textile Manufacturing Co., stated to the Committee, "And very soon unless we have relief there will be thousands and hundreds of people discharged because of our inability to produce those goods; creating a commercial disturbance as well as a political disturbance."

Then on Page 146 he added, "So, as I understand it, the establishment of this industry is called for not only by the exigencies of the textile and other trades alone, but it is also needed for protection of life and property in this country."

Following Mr. Kip, W. D. Livermore of the American Woolen Co. testified, Page 152, "We feel that if this war continues, for example, two or three years, that we shall, long before that time, have been absolutely out of foreign dyestuffs, and that we have every reason to wish that capital shall be interested in the production in this country sufficient to enable us to go on without seriously limiting the kinds and styles in goods that we can deliver in this country."

Later in the hearings a distinguished representative of the Silk Association of America, Mr. Charles L. Auger, of Paterson, N. J., stated, Page 156, "We want to place ourselves in the position which will prevent the recurrence of a critical situation such as is confronting this country today, through the hampering of one of its most important industries for the want of material which this country is well able to manufacture within its borders, but which it has been unable to, up to the present time, owing to the lack of interest both on the part of the Government and the consumers. It is very true that as compared to the output of the textile and various other industries, which depend upon coloring material, the amount of dyestuffs consumed is very small; but it is of vital importance."

And he in turn was followed by Mr. Horace B. Cheney, who at the very outset of his remarks stated, Page 157, "We find the present situation an impossible one, and do no wish to suffer again by being placed in the situation now confronted by a great industry or the possible necessity of discounting operations and throwing thousands of people out of employment because of the impossibility of securing at any price articles necessary to complete the manufacture."

REMARKABLE CONTRAST SHOWN BY TARIFF COMMISSION REPORT

As a contrast to this scene of industrial stress there is before me the recent issue of the Tariff Commission's annual Census of Dyes and other Synthetic Organic Chemicals, setting forth the condition of the industry in 1923. These annual official showings of the progress of our industry can be summarized best in graphic form as shown in the accompanying chart made up from the records of the Tariff Commission, showing the domestic production, exports and imports. Familiar as I am with the important contribution made by our industry to American consumers, I am frank to say that when this chart was completed it astounded me to see how well the industry has served American interests so far as tonnage is concerned.

But the commission's reports do not confine themselves merely to figures of tonnage. Ample testimony has been published based upon extensive correspondence with officers of the commission on the question of continuous improvement in the uniformity and the high quality of American products. As a matter of fact, the day of criticism of quality of American dyes has passed. That issue is forever settled by the willing testimony of consumers in all parts of the country. The dyes they are now receiving from American manufacturers are fully up to and in many cases surpass pre-war standards.

EFFICIENCY HAS STEADILY REDUCED PRICES

As to tonnage, with the memory of that 1916 hearing still vividly before me, it is a remarkable showing that in 1923 the American industry was able to manufacture 93,500,000 pounds of dyes, with such variety of products that more than 96 percent of the domestic consumption was supplied by the domestic industry. It is easy for anyone of manufacturing experience to understand that the further expansion of this tonnage can easily be carried out as market conditions justify it, for, with the experience we have now gained in the manufacture of the great tonnage dyes it is merely a matter of adding additional plant units. As to prices, the Tariff Commission's figures from year to year show that our manufacturers have steadily increased their efficiency, and as they have been able to secure increased yields from given amounts of raw material or have found new and better methods of operation, they have continuously decreased the prices of their products, and now, taking into consideration the comparative purchasing power of the dollar, it can be stated with confidence that the consumer is paying on the average for his dyes not more than he paid before the war, and in many cases less. Though the industry has been favored with effective protection through executive and Congressional acts, domestic competition has been and still is so keen that the dye industry is no longer considered an El Dorado. In the past it has been grossly misjudged because of inordinate profits made by some who rushed into the field when consumers were willing to pay any price whatsoever for any kind of product. Though there were times in 1916 when great profits were made, the men who were destined to be the permanent builders of this industry reinvested in research and more efficient plants, while the fly-by-nights, through the operation of the law of survival of the fittest, soon dropped out.

"Important" Financial Announcement

The announcement in the advertisement columns appearing today, signed by a number of the Shanghai banks, concerning German marks, is important in this sense, that it finally disposes of any doubts that any holders of marks may have had as to their value—that is, they now KNOW that they are valueless, for that is what the announcement that one BILLION (the British or German billion of a million million and not the American million of a thousand million) are to be exchanged for one "real" mark practically amounts to. In this connection it may be stated that more than one depositor of marks in German banks in Germany saw his balance disappearing under the following circumstances. The German bank would regularly send out a statement of the depositor's account, and of course charge the postage against the account. As the mark went down, the postage went up, and soon the account was balanced and wiped out by the mere routine of the process of reporting on its condition.

American Exports To Asia Decline During September

But Increases Are Reported To All Other Parts Of The World

Washington, Oct. 30.—Exports to all sections of the world, except Asia, increased during September as compared with the same month last year, according to foreign trade figures issued today by the Commerce Department. Imports to all parts of the world showed increases for the month. The drop in exports to Asia amounted to about $4,000,000.

The department's report follows (000 omitted):

Notice to German Mark Depositors

Owing to the German Government having now introduced the new Reichsmark currency at the rate of old Marks 1,000,000,000,000.00 for one new Reichsmark, banks in Germany have consequently announced the closing of all old Mark accounts on their books.

Upon receipt of the above announcement dated October 16, 1924, we, the undersigned banks, Members of the Shanghai Bankers Association, have resolved that, in settlement of the old Mark deposits of our customers, German Mark banknotes as received from banks in Germany will be paid to the respective depositors on principal and interest.

This notice is therefore jointly issued for the information of all our German Mark depositors that, within six months from date of this Notice, they are requested to present their Deposit Receipts and or Passbooks to their respective banks whereagainst they will receive German Mark banknotes in settlement of their accounts. After expiration of the specified period we shall accept no further responsibility for such deposits, which accounts shall be considered closed as of no value.

Yokohama Wants The Foreigners To Come Back!

IN view of agitations now so prevalent in China against foreigners it should be of some interest here to refer to a campaign now being conducted in Japan to induce the foreigners to return to Yokohama. According to the Japan Advertiser (Tokio) for November 16, the Yokohama Municipality will as a preliminary build 20 houses for foreigners to induce them to return to Yokohama. Prior to the earthquake there were 8,000 foreigners in the city of Yokohama, including the Chinese population but now there are only 2,000 foreigners in the city and most of them are Chinese. To quote from the news item:

"The mayor of Yokohama said, yesterday, that the prosperity of the port is largely due to the foreign residents and to restore Yokohama to the importance it enjoyed before the disaster, it is asking foreign residents to come back to Yokohama.

"After much negotiation with the government authorities, the municipality has obtained Y.100,000 from the Benevolent Society, a semi-government institution, to build offices and dwelling houses for foreign residents.

"With this fund, the municipality will build 20 houses for foreigners, each house to cost Y.5,000. Many former foreign residents in Yokohama are still staying in Kobe and other cities in Japan, because they could get no houses in Yokohama.

"The mayor is still negotiating for another fund to build schools in Yokohama for foreign children. The mayor said yesterday there is possibility of obtaining this fund.

"The municipal authorities announced yesterday that they will not be strict again in the collection of municipal taxes on foreign residents in Yokohama. Just before the earthquake, the municipality decided to enforce measures for the collection of taxes on foreign residents, which, however, was suspended temporarily on account of the earthquake and bills of three million yen, outstanding municipal taxes on foreign residents, were destroyed by the fire. The municipality will not enforce any measures on the old outstanding bills."

Yokohama was formerly a foreign concession in Japan somewhat similar to the foreign concessions at Shanghai. When the foreign administrations were abolished, following the abrogation of the extraterritorial treaties, the Japanese Government attempted to tax the holders of the so-called "perpetual leases," but the foreigners objected on the grounds of their treaty rights. The case was finally carried to The Hague and the foreigners won their point, the Tribunal holding that the treaties were valid. This has always constituted a sore point among certain classes in Japan and according to report the Japanese have retaliated against the foreigners on occasion in the past by refusing to build modern roads in the former foreign area and in other ways.

Then the earthquake came along and practically wiped out Yokohama including property owned by foreigners. When the foreigners viewed the scene of devastation, most of them, that is the Europeans and Americans, decided that it was not worth while to rebuild in Yokohama—for a time at least—and re-established themselves in Kobe and Tokio.

Now the Japanese authorities in Yokohama have discovered, as the Mayor of that city was quoted above, that the foreigners contributed much toward the former prosperity of that port and hence they must be induced to return, even to the extent of constructing houses and schools for the use of the foreigners.

The foregoing should have considerable interest for the radical and other unthinking classes of Chinese who are now agitating for an abolition of foreign interests in this land. We imagine that if the foreigners in China, business men, teachers, everybody, should suddenly decide to pack up and depart from China that there would be a sudden change of front—somewhat in accordance with what is now happening in Yokohama? The average agitator against the foreigner in China overlooks entirely the fact that the foreigners, taking them as a whole, have contributed far more to China than they have taken out and were it not for the competition and stimulation which the foreigner brings to the land in practically every field of human activity, that China would be the loser. Peoples however seldom realise these things, so the case of Yokohama should provide serious thought for those who think China's troubles are all caused by foreigners and that everything would be righted if the foreigners would only get out.

The Motorists' Rights

THE decision of Magistrate G. W. King, in the British Police Court, to admit as evidence information given by motor car owners to the police under a by-law requiring them to do so in cases where offences are alleged, has added point to considerable discussion which has cropped up in the past on this particular question. At present when an infringement of a traffic regulation is noted by the police, it is the practice of the police to send to the registered owner of the car a form which he is required to fill in, stating who was in charge of the vehicle at the time the offence complained of was committed. The recipient of such a request is obliged under the regulations to give such information, for should he refuse to do so, he may be proceeded against on that count alone and fined in the local courts. There is a large number of motorists who consider, as did the defendant in the case on Saturday morning, that to fill in such a document in fact constitutes an admission of guilt of the offence alleged. In this connection the form which the police send out is not uninteresting: "Sir, I have to request that you furnish me without delay with the following particulars regarding the driver of Motor Car No.....registered in your name and driven.....on.....Road, near..... Road at about.....p.m. on the.....192.... who is alleged to have committed a breach of Traffic Regulation No....." Then follows a small questionnaire relating to the name of the driver, his address, nationality and number of his driving licence, all of which appears above the signature of the officer sending out the inquiry, no space being afforded for the signature of the person of whom the information is desired. If as in one case we have seen the information given is typewritten, and without any signature except that of the police officer, the document would not seem to be worth the paper it is written on, for it certainly could not be evidence against anyone.

But motorists are more concerned with the contention that they are obliged by one regulation to give the police assistance which might tend to their incrimination in a prosecution under another. Undoubtedly if such an irregular document as the one we have described is admissible against a defendant, even though it does not amount to a confession of guilt, it assists the police in their prosecution to a degree which must militate against the defendant, for it removes from the officials a considerable amount of the onus of proof, and certainly does oblige the motorist to assist in his own conviction. It may be argued, on the other hand, that the information required can never amount to a confession. That may be true. If it did, the document would be clearly objectionable under the old rule which precludes the use of a confession which is not voluntary, being used against a defendant. And it is clear that in this instance the information thus obtained by the police is wrested from the motorist under threats of pains and penalities for failure to acquiesce in the request. On the other hand, an owner driver, replying to the questions sent him, in fact admits nothing except that he did drive the car on the date in question, it certainly cannot be taken as an admission of guilt, though it may, in proper form, prove for the police what they would have considerable difficulty in proving were they left to their own devices. Supposing, on the other hand, a driver, in receipt of such a questionnaire, replied that he did not propose to give the police any information which might tend to incriminate himself in relation to any alleged breach of the regulations. It would seem that he would have a perfect right to do so, and to deny him that would have the effect of interfering with his constitutional rights. Yet under the regulation as it at present stands he might be punished for maintaining rights which would not be denied him in his own country. But if we disregard that particular argument and adopt the principle that municipal legislation may at times limit constitutional rights, it does not do away with the other contention that these questionnaires, as they stand at present, should be inadmissible in a court of law. They need not contain the signature of the person giving the information, they might be filled in by anyone without authority to do so and in their present form cannot properly be effective evidence. It is impossible not to sympathise with the authorities in the struggle they are having with the many difficult traffic problems which they have to encounter, and for that reason we would suggest that some more convincing document could be prepared for production in a court of law, and that the legality of the whole procedure should be tested as soon as possible. The point is one, even after Mr. King's remarks on the subject, which seems to need some definite ruling.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

The racers on their wheels rushed past,
And Number 3 was out ahead;
He looked superb; he rode so fast
That no one wondered why he led;
The others, trailing off behind,
Were hopelessly outclassed, I thought;
Mile after mile I watched them grind,
Their heads bent low, their muscles taut.

And there were cheers for Number 3,
Who seemed so sure, so fast, so strong;
A man beside me shouted: "See
How easily he speeds along!"
But presently, from somewhere in
The group behind a rider came;
The line stretched backward, long and thin,
The lame ducks seeming very lame;

Then foot by foot and yard by yard
The lead was cut by Number 9.
Till Number 3, pressed long and hard,
Became the second man in line,
Then third, then fourth, and, cheered no more.
He that had seemed so fast and fit
Sagged weakly in the trunks he wore,
And lost all hope, at length, and quit.

In life it is as in the race;
The leader seems sublime, indeed,
But confidence fades from his face
As soon as he has ceased to lead;
We cheer him till he falls behind,
And, scorning then to give him praise,
We wonder why we were so blind
To all the faults that he betrays.

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

PROVINCIALISM VERSUS NATIONALISM

(New Rochelle, N. Y. Star)

The problem of disarmament in China is distinctly an internal one, if disarmament means that no nation must have a surplus of troops for aggression against her neighbors. While the military strength of China probably aggregates a million men, it is so divided into provincial armies that to think of it as a whole is impossible. As a danger to world peace her armies do not count any more than Mexico's, but they are a grave menace to the republic herself.

The system of strong military provincial governors is the thorn in the flesh of China, for Chinese unification can never be possible while they exist. How to dispense with them is, however, another question. At present the central government in China is powerless. From causes both natural and political there is very little national feeling in the country. The nation itself is so big, so undeveloped by industries and railroad facilities, its people are so divided by mountain and river barriers, they speak so many dialects, that a common understanding seems impossible. And all these natural difficulties to unification are exaggerated and intensified by the provincial system and its political organisation. The central government, hampered by this lack of moral support, is furthermore unable to carry on successfully because it has not the money. The natural way to put the military governors in the background would be to build up a strong national army. But a nation cannot have a strong army even for internal defense, without money. Revenues that should come to the Peking government are intercepted by the provincial bosses and used for their own armies.

Perhaps some good may come of the present conflict. A leader may emerge who is strong enough to unite the warring factions, and far visioned enough to work for a whole, not a divided, China.

THE FOREIGN LADY AND TAG DAY

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir:—Allow me a little of your valuable space in the correspondence column to speak a few words about the Tag Day which took place on last Saturday. The undertaking was entirely of the students' own initiative. Realising the sufferings of our fellow-men in the war zone of the late Kiangsu and Chekiang fight, and the fast approach of cold weather with all its rigor we, the student class of China, resorted to such an undertaking. We appealled to the public at large for funds necessary to carry on our relief work. When I say "the public" of course it includes the Chinese as well as the foreigners, for under the spirit of altruism nationality and racial differences could find no room.

But unfortunately, when we approached our foreign friends on that day, we found that a good number of them were quite reluctant to appreciate our work. Some even went so far as to rebuke us. Let me cite two actual instances to exemplify my point. Being a student of St. John's University, I also took direct part in the enterprise. I was standing in front of the Standard Oil Company building when a smart foreigner in Tuxedo came passing me. I asked him to contribute. He instantly asked, "What for?" Without allowing time for me to explain, he rejoined, "To start a new war again?" Well, evidently that gentleman failed to see that the militarists and the students of China are two quite distinct classes of people. The undertaking, as I have said, was entirely initiated and carried on by the student class. The total proceeds is to be used in its entirety for relieving those war-stricken sufferers. Perhaps that gentleman needs to subscribe to THE CHINA PRESS so as to get himself always well-informed of the current events of this Great City.

The second instance sounds even more ridiculous. A lady, in Parisian mood, I presume, on being asked by me to contribute freely, replied thus: "All Chinese are mean and debased. Not a cent from me." I was greatly provoked at the time when she uttered such words. But on recalling the passage in the Bible that "Blessed are they who are persecuted and rebuked for righteousness, for they are under the rule of God," I quickly calmed myself down. Could such dirty words as she spoke come out of a lady's mouth? Evidently, the spirit of universal altruism is entirely lacking in that seeming lady. I am sure she could never have heard such famous saying as: "To give is more blessed than to take." If she did, she would be ashamed of her own words.

These were only two of the numerous instances of great disappointment to me and to my fellow-men. Of course, instances of generosity and appreciation on the part of our foreign friends were not wanting, but they were still in the minority. We Chinese, are always ready to join hands with those who consider themselves as our friends and pay due respects to us. I write down these few lines in the hope that those of our foreign friends who may entertain ill feeling towards us, Chinese, will make an effort to correct it, so that we may hope for a wholesome relationship. For, after all, this is the first and the fundamental step towards universal concord and brotherhood. Many thanks for your space.

THE EXAMINATION OF PHYSICIANS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir.—I have read with interest your report about the case of an unlicensed physician in the U. S. Court for China. Shanghai growing more and more into a modern, international metropolis, it seems to be time that the question of who may practise Medicine and who not, be settled.

There is actually no law that would hinder any grown up person to put up a sign-board with the title "Doctor," to give medical advise and to take fees for his services. If anyone wishes to do so he can without any hindrance by the authorities.

When a foreign medical man wishes to open his practice here, he is in want of a Hospital in which to send his patients and in which he may attend to them himself. In order to be admitted as visiting physician to the General Hospital he must have a testimonial from his Consul, that he has the right to practise medicine in his home-country and this certificate is put before the Board of Governors of the Hospital who officially pronounce his admittance.

The Hospitals belonging to the Municipal Council are informed of the action of the Governors of the General Hospital and only then is the Doctor in question allowed to attend at the Municipal Hospitals as well.

This certainly is a protection against charlatans, but it implies some hardships for physicians of smaller nations who have no Consular representative in China, as although they may be highly educated men, they will not be admitted to the Hospitals, and what is more, they are actually not looked upon as medical men by their colleagues.

On the other hand, there is now in Shanghai quite a number of Hospitals—Chinese and foreign—in which a Doctor who has not the privilege of attending to the General and Municipal Hospitals, may send his patients. Consequently, there is nothing to prevent "Doctors" who are not licensed in any country, to practise medicine and to attend to patients in those Hospitals. And it is to be expected that men, who have so wide a conscience as to attend to sick people without being properly acknowledged, will be quite satisfied and pay little attention, whether the true medical practitioners look upon them as quacks or not.

I do not know, and I do not wish to raise the question, whether or not such "Doctors" are in Shanghai. It ought to be sufficient, that the possibility exists, to adjust the law in this respect.

Like every civilised country, there ought to be a board of physicians who have to examine each individual that applies for the privilege to practise medicine in Shanghai and their permission or refusal should be dependent of the success of the examination or examinations. At least this ought to be the case with foreign Doctors.

Chinese Doctors might be given the right to practise within the

Weather Prophecy By Corn Husks And Fox Fur

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"We frequently read expressions like these, 'Farmers predict a hard Winter, as the fur of foxes this FaH is uncommonly heavy,' or 'The husks have grown thick on corn this year, so we may expect a cold Winter,' etc., etc. Do you believe that such signs are really prophetic, as if a universal consciousness were preparing the foxes and the corn for the coming cold?—W. E. R."

We shall never hear the last of these weather proverbs because they are intrenched behind the universal love of the marvelous. Personally I should be sorry to see them vanish from folklore, for they are practically harmless and very picturesque.

You may observe, also, that they reveal a desire to keep on the ground of reason, since they suggest a natural explanation for their own prophecies. Of course, that explanation is based on a very risky, though not altogether illogical, assumption, viz., that vegetation and the lower animal world posses something resembling a primitive sense which puts them into accord with the earliest preparatory steps of inanmiate nature when some abnormal departure from the ordinary course of the seasons is about to occur.

Natural history anecdotes abound in examples of apparent foresight of seasonal eccentricites, and even of temporary weather changes, manifested by the growth of plants, and the conduct of both wild and domesticated animals. You will not easily dissuade many farmers that their pea hens, their geese, the tree toads in their orchards, or even the humble earthworms in their gardens, do not know a great deal more than they themselves do about coming wet or dry weather.

Science is bound to look with skepticism upon such things, however strongly they may be attested by striking coincidences, because it is the business of science to beware of the deceptive character of coincidence, and to demand always a carefully tested chain of observations showing the connection of any extraordinary phenomenon with the usual course of nature. Such connection would be established in the case that we are dealing with if the supposed extraordinary sensitiveness of the plants and animals concerned were independently proved. But it is not proved.

It is true, however, that there are many puzzling, and suggestive facts in the lives of certain animals which might be used in an argument for the existence of a closer sympathy between them and natural phenomenon than exists with us. I could fill columns with stories, apparently well attested, that tend to support such an hypothesis. But the matter has never been put to "the laboratory test," i. e., tried out on a strictly scientific method, and so we must continue to regard all such stories as "interesting if true," and I may add, interesting anyhow, in many cases.

The southward flight of migratory birds taking place at an unusually early period in seasons when a premature winter is about to open; or the arrival of the birds in the north a week or more ahead of their customary time when a forerunning spring is approaching, are things that have been reported again and again.

Almost every observer of nature can recall instances of this kind, when, in the midst, perhaps, of a late snow squall, a sudden cheerful call of a bird that ought to be still a thousand miles farther toward the equator, reaches his surprised ear through the falling flakes; to be followed not many days after by a general return of the migrants, heralding an abnormal spring.

On the other hand, it is to be noticed that the farmers' and the hunters' predictions of early or unusually severe seasons, based on the behavior or other peculiarities of animals or plants are suggested in most cases only by local and individual observations and are seldom followed by a continued series of observations on a broad scale, calculated to establish a connection between the accidental observations and the character of the succeeding season.

It has happened that a farmer in one township or county has found his corn husks uncommonly thick and inferred that a severe winter was coming, while a brother farmer in another county has seen no similar "signs" on his corn and has made no inference. If the severe winter really came, one of the observers would say: "Didn't I tell you so; the corn knowed it." But the other would say: "If I had only had a grouch on this cold winter, I'd have been readier for it."

So with the foxes; they are cunning animals, but if they are to be regarded as trustworthy prophets of hard winters their sponsors will have first to prove that foxes posses a secret Weather Bureau that can beat ours.

Well-dressed Women Wear Spotted Leopard Skins, Real or Make Believe

The remark was passed about that the future of leopard and other similar spotted cat fur had been jeopardized by the appearance on the scene of fashion of inexpensive imitation "leopard" skins. There are thick plushes that look like leopard at a distance of a hundred feet—but no closer. There are actual skins, spotted after the manner of leopards, though one strongly suspects that the pelts were originally worn by backyard felines and that the spots were post-mortem acquisitions.

But the fact remains that leopard and the leopard idea still remains in good odor. Smart women wear leopard spots, and they wear imitation leopard. Truth to tell, one of the greatest fabric makers in France has produced crinkled velvet of a tawny background with leopard-like spots that no one regards as an imitation in the sense that for a moment they are deceived by it, but it is smart nevertheless. Here and there one does see an example of the "leopard effect" that seems cheap and entirely undesirable. A negligee recently displayed was of this sort. It was of rose-colored silk trimmed with ribbon and had great panels, front and back, of velvet that would put any real leopard to the blush.

But the fine quality crinkled velvet with leopard spots is still smart. There are charming small hats of it and cuffs and collar sets to be attached to coat frocks. The sketch shows a tricorne of leopard-printed velvet, which is worn with a leopard coat.

And now we have leopard-spotted satin. One hat made of this material is a draped turban with a large drooping fancy of black ostrich at the right side. Another is trimmed around the crown with triangles of black satin and has a rosette of black satin ribbon at the right side, and still a third of these leopard-satin hats is a high-crowned sailor with an oval metallic ornament directly in the front of the crown.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

THE HOUSEWIFE'S NEGLIGEES

The day has passed when every woman feels that she must have a frilly sort of negligee, whether she intends to wear it for taking breakfast in her room and spending an idle hour reading reclining on a chaise longue, or to hurry to the kitchen to prepare early-morning breakfast and assist with the dressing of the children. The fact is that really mannish negligees are considered very smart nowadays and they are eminently more practicable.

Unless you want a very warm bathrobe you may be pleased with a heavy terry cloth bathrobe to use as a winter negligee. These are to be had cut in mannish fashion in attractive shades. A lovely violet shade of terry cloth seems especially attractive. Mannish flannel bathrobes are excellent. They are light in weight and quite warm, and then there are mannish black and white and brown and white mixtures, made up to look like men's dressing gowns. These are often very becoming to women. Blanket bathrobes have become an institution. The skillful home dressmaker can make one herself. She may choose one of the blankets that comes for the purpose or if she wants something a little more original she might select a so-called steamer rug in one of the fashionable Scotch plaids.

TWO TIMELY RECIPES

Sausage Roll

One pound sausage meat, flour, lard, baking powder, ice water. Make a rich biscuit dough. Put the sausage meat in the middle of the paste, which you have rolled out about three-fourths of an inch thick; spread out the sausage meat to cover the dough, and roll the biscuit dough into a roll. Bake until done.

Rice and Sausages

Wash a cup of rice and boil for twenty-five minutes in a large kettle of salty water. Drain and spread in a shallow buttered dish. Cut eight sausages into slices and lay them on the rice. Bake for twenty minutes and serve in the baking dish. The rice may be cooked the night before.

WHERE DO YOU WEAR YOUR BAR PIN?

There is a great vogue for shoulders.

That is, the new frocks emphasize the shoulder by placing much trimming there. And one of the things to notice is the fact that in lovely evening gowns a jeweled bar pin is used for trimming. The pin is placed on the As the price seems to have been shoulder of the gown.

Settlement, if they hold a Diploma of one of the recognised Medical Schools of China.

The question just who ought to form the Board of examinators for the nostrification of new physicians is a question which should be settled by the Municipal authorities, after consulting with the Shanghai Medical Association upon the subject.

Then either by the Association, or by the Council, those among the local physicians can be appointed who seem to be the most prominent in each one of the medical disciplines. As petitions of new Doctors probably will not come up every day, not even very frequently, I should think that each of the appointed physicians will be in a position to find sufficient time for the examination, and will be glad to do it as a service to the community, or for a very moderate fee; if the latter be deemed more adequate by the authorities.

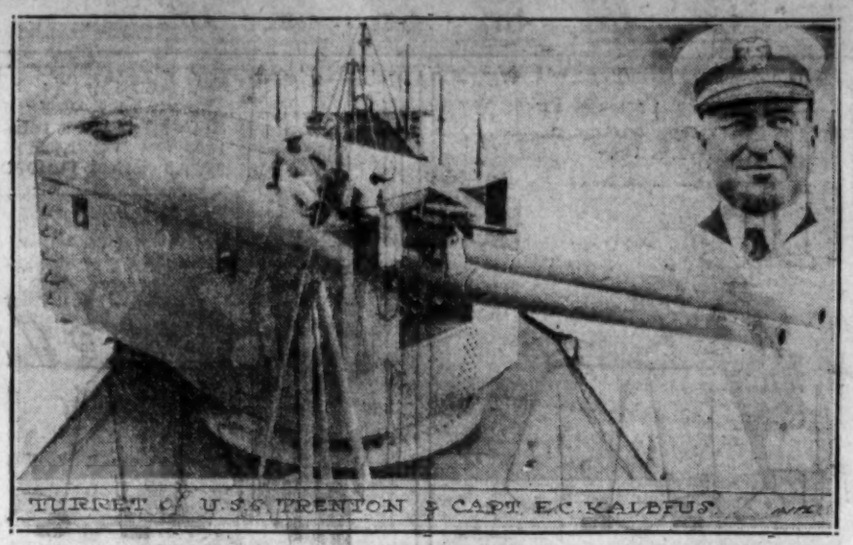
TRENTON'S SAILORS KILLED IN NEW TWIN-MOUNT TURRET.



This is the new type twin-mount turret containing the six-inch guns on the United States scout cruiser Trenton, where several sailors were killed in a powder explosion on her final trial trip off the Virginia Capes. News dispatches say others were blown overboard when the access door to the turret gave way and then fell into the sea because the swing of the turret brought this door over the side of the ship. It will be noted that such is the case in this photograph, which was taken when the six-inch rifles were set to fire a broadside. The ship was commanded by Captain E. C. Kalbfus.

Records By S.S. Empress Of France

The Canadian-Pacific liner, Empress of France, built by William Beardmore & Co., Ltd., of Glasgow, in 1913, was last summer converted by the same company to burn oil instead of coal under the boilers. The immediate result has amazed marine engineers, for on her very first trip this vessel, which had already created record after record on various passages between

Witness Tells How Mob Murdered Major Imbrie

American Victim Of Anti-Foreign Propaganda Had No Chance As Persians Killed Him "Like A Dog"

Another story of the Saghakhaneh, which led to the killing of the American Consul, Major Robert W. Imbrie, on July 18, 1924, is as follows:

A certain Saghakhaneh located at the Chaharah Haji Sheikh Hadi, north of Hassanabad, had been credited with performing miracles in the following manner. A certain man one day passing by the said Saghakhaneh stops to drink water, the keeper of the place asks him few shahies in the name of Hazrat Abbas (since all the Saghakhanehs are built in his memory), the man (who they say was a Bahai) turns around and says if you had asked in the names of Abbas Effendi I would have given you two tomans. The man leaves and starts walking, they say he was suddenly struck blind and fell down.

Like a lightning the news spread all over the town that miracle has been performed. There were celebrations all over the city on the occasion. Then again news were disseminated that few blind and paralytic people who have visited the place have been healed. There began a mass pilgrimage to the said Saghakhaneh, people having diseases of all description lying all around the place with pieces of rags one end tied to their neck and one end to the wooden railings of the Saghakhaneh with the hope of obtaining healing from Hazrat Abbas.

MASSES IMPRESSED

Again news were spread that a Bahai had come to the place with the intention of poisoning the water of the Saghakhaneh, as he had stretched forth his hand to drop the poison his hand was suddenly withered. All such foolish stories were spread among the ignorant mass and people went wild with joy of the power of their patron saint. Latest investigations have revealed that there was an organised band of clergy in the city who had put up these tricks for their gain and political ends.

American Consul on Friday July 18 about 11 a.m. with another American whom the former Consul Bernard Gotlieb had brought from Ahwaz and who was a some sort of a prisoner in the Consulate and one of the Consulate's servants, with the intention of taking the photo of the said Saghakhaneh, takes a carriage to the place, he alights from the carriage near the Saghakhaneh and approaches the place asking the policeman there if he could take the photo of the Saghakhaneh, the policeman says no, so he folds up his kodak and starts walking back with the other American.

The carriage had left by that time and no carriage was to be found in the neighborhood. So they walk back on foot towards Hassanabad through a street leading to the avenue of Youssefabad. Right after he leaves a certain man spreads rumors that those European visitors had come to poison the water and some say that he pumped poison into the water from his machine. Thus the mob gathers and follows him from afar and throws stones at them:

HORSES TAKE FRIGHT

Consul succeeds in taking a carriage with the other American in the street leading to Khiaban Youssefabad. Horses being frightened instead of turning towards Hassanabad and the Consulate, which would have saved his life, they run towards tramway lines going up to Darvazeh Kazin. Consul tells the driver to drive as fast as he can and they say the driver had tried his best to get away from the mob. The carriage runs towards Meydan Topkhaneh through the Avenue Speh. The mob follows the carriage by stones but were unable to overtake the carriage.

But there has been a man on motor-cycle, on whom stays the guilt of the Consul's murder, goes ahead of the carriage and arriving in front of the Cossackhaneh, he tells the Cossacks to stop the Europeans in the carriage, they have poisoned the water of the Saghakhaneh two women have drunk and died. When the Consul arrives in front of the Cossackhaneh soldiers stop his carriage and pull down the driver. Consul gets off the carriage and seeks refuge in a tea shop right opposite the entrance of the Cossackhaneh and the other American runs to the guards for protection.

The Consulate servant was beaten who having succeeded in escaping and taking news to the Consulate. The first who had taken part in killing the Consul have been the soldiers and then the mob was encouraged to take part, otherwise he would not have been killed. In tea shop the mob led by the soldiers had very badly beaten him, they had even poured hot boiling water on his face and body. Soldiers had hit him with swords and bayonets. The other fellow in front of the Cossackhaneh was badly handled, too.

KILLED IN HOSPITAL

Somehow the police succeed in taking the Consul and the other American to the Police Hospital, which was very near. When taken to the hospital they were not in a very hopeless condition, it was in hospital that the consul was killed by the mob. If they had kept the mob out of the hospital the Consul would not have been killed. While his wounds were being dressed the mob, led by the soldiers, had rushed into the hospital by breaking the window panes, doors and so forth and right there the mob had picked up bricks from the floor and had beaten the consul to a pulp, especially his head. The soldiers had freely used their bayonets and swords on the Consul. The Consul had expired under the mob's kicks and stones right in the hospital at 2 p.m.

They say the Consul's body was so bruised and was beaten to a piece of pulp that he had become totally unrecognisable even to his wife. His skull, jaw bones, the teeth and all the bones of his body were smashed. He was totally disfigured. The other fellow though just as badly handled survived and is recovering, although still very unconscious. They are doing their best to have him recover and tell the story.

The mob had killed the Consul as if they are killing a dog. Such barbarous ways of killing only happen among the savages. They say such a thing had never happened in Persia and will always remain as one of the blackest spots in Persian history.

The news of the Consul's killing left a very sad and depressing impression on the European and Christian colony and many intelligent Persians. All the papers denounced it most emphatically as being worthy of savages.

On the 19th, Consul's funeral ceremonies took place with great military honors. The soldiers all dressed up and lined up the two sides of the streets and inside the American Mission Church. Military band was playing. The coffin was covered with the American flag. All the foreign Ministers, Reza Khan with the members of the Cabinet, Muderis, big Moshiands, Mullahs and other influential Government officials were present.

When the coffin was being started towards the Protestant cemetery, Reza Khan with his Cabinet followed it on foot and himself gave military salute to the coffin.

Sold $3,000,000 Mine for Just $125.

"SANDY" McINTYRE.

Esau's sale of his birthright for a mess of pottage was easily outdone by "Sandy" McIntyre, Western prospector, who discovered the famous McIntyre gold mine at Porcupine, and who sold it for just $125. The purchaser resold it for $200,000, and the mine has since paid $3,000,000 in dividends. "Sandy" is still prospecting.

American Minister, you could tel from his face, was so indignant that he paid no attention to Reza Khan or members of his Cabinet neither shook hands with any of the Persians, nor did the late Consul's wife.

OIL MAN TO RETURN

His body is embalmed and will be taken to America by a United States man-of-war which is expected to arrive in Bushire soon. His wife will accompany the body and they say Sopere, of the Sinclair Oil Company, is leaving, too, but will return again. American Legation has requested that the Consul's body should be carried through the country to the port by military honors, that is, a company of soldiers and representative of the government will have to accompany the body to the port. The Persian government is to incur all the expenses of the American man-of-war from and to America.

Following this incident the Turkish Ambassador, as dean of Ministers, presented the Persian government a note of protest signed by all the foreign legations in Teheran, including Afghanistan and Soviet, denouncing in severe terms the killing of the American Consul and demanding punishment of the culprits, protection of foreigners in Persia and safety for the religious minorities. In reply the Persian government stated that they are very sorry for what has taken place and will punish the culprits and promise protection and safety for the foreigners and non-Moslem elements.

The next day after the killing of the Consul, martial law was declared in Teheran and its surroundings and wholesale arrests were made. They say few hundreds are arrested and investigations are being made to find out the real ring-leaders and perpetrators of this crime. Mejlis is not closed neither Muderis arrested. Khalisadeh has been arrested and they say expelled from the country some say sent to Isfahan, Meshed and there is even rumors that he has been shot, nobody knows his whereabouts. Quite a few influential Mullahs have been arrested and they say they are being expelled from the country.

POLITICAL ENEMIES JAILED

Most of the prisoners in jails arrested are Reza Khan's political opponents. He is using Consul's death to get rid of his enemies. The Persian Government has pledged to inflict death punishment on all the culprits, even soldiers. At first they tried to exonerate the military from the guilt, but the American Legation proved by the wounds received by the Consul that the military have taken part and the Persian Government has promised to shoot all the soldiers and hang the civilians who have taken part in the killing of the Consul.

At present no final note has been delivered to the Persian Government, but in a note delivered the Foreign office by the American Legation denounces the act of the killing in Teheran the Consul of a friendly nation and military taking part and demands severe punishment of all guilty and ring-leaders. Till the punishment is actually inflicted the American Government will not be disposed to enter further negotiations and reserves to herself all further demands and indemnity that will be demanded of the Persian Government in future. American Legation has also demanded safety and protection for the lives of the American citizens, and additional adequate and sufficient guard for the American Legation and Consulate till Legation dismisses them as not being necessary.

BOYS ANNOY MRS. IMBRIE

The Legation has ordered the Americans not to go to bazar as the other day the late Consul's wife Mrs. Imbrie out for shopping in Nasirieh with Mrs. Packard was insulted by Persian boys who had got hold of her black veil and pulled it. These boys are arrested and they say are being whipped every day. The Persian Government in reply to the Legation's note again and again pledges herself to punish the culprits and promises protection and safety for the lives of the American citizens.

Such an incident was almost foreseen by many, but they got the wrong man. Just before this incident active propaganda was carried on for starting trouble in the city and massacring Bahais, Armenians and other non-Moslem elements. So really the Consul died and saved the lives of the various religious minorities. Before the incident the Persians were looking for trouble with foreigners and had become so arrogant. But now they are so depressed and in low spirits and have become very gentle, especially they are very careful with the foreigners and so forth.

No three Persians are allowed to stand together in the streets. Police posts have been increased in the city, soldiers with the police are patroling the streets. After midnight anybody found in the streets is arrested. They say, as usual, all these troubles are managed by the British to keep the country in a distracted condition so that the oil question will never go through and make the Americans so disgusted of Persia that they will leave Persia for the British. Of course, they did not mean to have the American Consul killed, but by the destinies of faith he became a victim.

The oil question which has been pending in the Mejlis Commission so long and had not come before Mejlis for ratification, right after this incident they hurried it to Mejis and were rushing through its ratification. Twelve points out of twenty-eight have already passed the Mejlis, despite the opposition from the Mejlis minority they are ratifying it and it is thought that in the near future it will be completely ratified. By doing so they think they can please the American government and get away with the incident.

But Sopere has said that all the program that the Americans had for Persia has sunk, due to the killing of the consul. The American government can get anything out of Persian government in the way of concessions, and so forth, so long as the American government does not deal with them harshly. It must also be stated here, while on this subject, it is high time to get favorably settled of the American pending cases in the Foreign Office.

In the first few days the Persians were very much scared, they all thought that severance of diplomatic relations will come about and even war and the United States navy soon will be bombarding the Persian towns in the Persian Gulf. This fear has partly passed, and no serious consequences are expected in the way of diplomatic rupture between the United States and Persian governments. The opinion of the most people is that the thing will end in Persian government paying heavy indemnity to the American government, pension to his wife, punishment of the culprits and granting various concessions to the Americans.

OFFERED TO PENSION WIDOW

In connection with indemnity the Persian Government's representative had called on the American Minister, they say, and had told him that the Persian Government is perfectly willing to pay adequate pension to Consul's wife and sustain her all her life. The Minister had replied that the American Government is rich enough to take care of the widows of her sons who have died in the service of their country and does not need the help of the beggar Persia. American does not want your money neither your savagerles.

Also one from the Persian Foreign Office has presented the Minister a letter of condolence signed by the heads of the various Government Departments. The Minister has received him very coolly and had thanked him very coolly too and had said that we will know how sincere you are when we actually see the Government punishing the culprits.

The Minister is very mad at the Persians and it is high time to appeal him for the settlement of the various cases of American firms and even if possible in case of peaceful settlement of the incident between the two Governments to make this point one of the terms.

It is thought that the American Minister has not presented the facts emphatic enough in the State Department, otherwise more drastic steps would have been forthcoming.

All Mullahs are forbidden to talk or discuss politics from their pulpits, in case they do so they will be arrested and tried by court martial.

Murray is put in charge of the Consulate temporarily and he is also in charge of investigations in connection with the Consul's death.
